CLEMSON TIGER FOOTBALL

Henry Owen 7

Long snapper Henry Owen has the lowest handicap of any Tiger football player since Scott Beville, who coincidentally, was Clemson's long snapper between 1988 and 1990. Although he seems to have what it takes to play golf at the collegiate level, Owen is in his fourth season as the first-team long snapper for the Clemson football team.

Terry Kinard 10

Terry Kinard is the most decorated football player in Clemson history. In November against Florida State, a day that will celebrate the 20-year anniversary of the National Championship, he will be inducted into the the Clemson Ring of Honor and in December, he will gain admittance into the College Football Hall of Fame.

Virginia Series 14

The Tigers lead the overall series with Virginia 34-5-1, but in the last 10 season, the Tigers hve just a 5-4-1 record vs. the Cavaliers. The Tigers won the first 29 games of the series. Virginia broke the streak in 1990. Some of Clemson's top comeback victories in history have come against the Cavaliers.

Matt Schell 49

Backup quarterback Matt Schell has earned the respect of his teammates. In the last two spring games, Schell has completed 18 of 32 passes for 330 yards. His spring stats have been the most impressive on the team in the last two years, showing he is a capable backup to Woodrow Dantzler and Willie Simmons.

1981 Revisited 64

The Tigers' drive to the 1981 National Championship was a season few Clemson fans over the age of 30 will ever forget. This week, we will reflect on the beginning of the season's stretch run, as the Tigers finish "running the table" against Atlantic Coast Conference foes on Tobacco Road, including the battle for conference supremacy at Keenan Stadium in Chapel Hill.

Whitey Jordan 115

Whitey Jordan coached at Clemson for 14 seasons, including 12 under Frank Howard. He also coached at Southern Miss, SMU, Wake Forest, Florida and North Carolina. Working with players like Eric Dickerson at SMU and Emmitt Smith at Florida, helping them get to the pros, Jordan found his way to the pros, coaching in NFL Europe and in the XFL.

Today's Game

Clemson Holds 34-5-1 Lead in Series

Clemson holds a commanding 34-5-1 lead in the series with Virginia, but Virginia held the lead in the series 5-4-1 in the decade of the 1990s. The Cavaliers gained their first victory in the series in 1990, by a 20-7 score in Charlottesville. Clemson had won 29 straight games in the series dating back to 1955. Ironically, Clemson's first win in the series in 1955 was also by a 20-7 score.

Virginia has been a team that has gotten off to a great start in recent years and you can see that in the series with Clemson. Virginia was 4-1 in the month of September against Clemson in the 1990s, but just 1-3-1 in October and November against Clemson in the 1990s. Overall, Clemson is 24-1-1 against Virginia in October and November combined, but just 10-4 in September games against the Cavs. That includes last year's victory.

Clemson has an 18-2-1 record against Virginia in Death Valley over the years and a 16-3 record at Virginia. The only tie took place in 1991, a 20-20 score in Clemson. Clemson has won both games against the Cavaliers under Tommy Bowden, a 33-14 win in 1999, his first win at Clemson, and a 31-10 victory at Charlottesville, VA last year.

Some of Clemson's greatest comebacks in history have taken place against the Cavaliers. The top comeback came during Clemson's 29-28 victory at Virginia in 1992. The Tigers were down 28-0, then scored the last 29 points of the game to record the greatest comeback in ACC history in a game involving two ACC teams. Clemson also overcame a 14-point deficit in the fourth quarter in the 1980 Tiger victory, and a 17-point deficit in 1966, a 40-35 Clemson victory. For more on the Clemson-Virginia series, see the story on pages 14-15.

Last year vs. Virginia

Facing his team's toughest test of the season, Woodrow Dantzler responded with a performance that launched him into contention for the Heisman Trophy in Clemson's 31-10 win at Virginia last year. The junior rushed for 220 yards and passed for 154, leading his team victory. The win moved Clemson to #7 in the AP poll.

Dantzler's 220 rushing yards set an ACC record for a quarterback. The victory did not come as easily for Clemson as they had in previous weeks. The Tigers overcame four turnovers to come away with the win.

Clemson never held a lead in the first quarter. The Cavaliers took over after a Clemson fumble at the Tiger three-yard line. Antoine Womack scored on a three-yard run to give Virginia a 7-0 lead. Womack ran for 80 yards in the game.

The Tigers pushed deep into Virginia territory on the ensuing drive. Tommy Bowden called for a fake field goal on a fourth-and-two situation to sustain the drive. Holder Jeff Scott received the snap and ran nine yards to the eight-yard line. Clemson settled for a 19-yard field goal by Aaron Hunt.

Virginia matched the Tigers' effort with an impressive drive. Dan Ellis passed to Billy McMullen for a 37-yard gain. A Clemson off-sides penalty put the Cavaliers at the Tigers' 36-yard line. David Greene hit a 38-yard field goal to give the Cavaliers a 10-3 lead.

Virginia was forced to punt on its next drive. Joe Don Reames' return would prove to be the most crucial play of the game. Reames took the Virginia punt 69 yards for a game-tying touchdown. The play was the first punt return for a touchdown in the Tommy Bowden era.

Later in the period, Travis Zachery got loose for a 21-yard run to the Cavalier 32 yard line. Dantzler finished the drive with a 30-yard touchdown pass to Jackie Robinson with 9:40 remaining in the second period. The score remained 17-10 at halftime.

Clemson started to pull away on its first possession of the second half. Dantzler eluded Cavalier defenders for 75-yards in a spectacular touchdown run, tied for the longest ever by a Clemson quarterback. Dantzer later displayed the same brilliance on another touchdown rush. His 45-yard touchdown made the score 31-10.

The Tiger defense was effective in keeping Virginia from capitalizing on four potentially costly Clemson turnovers. Virginia was shut out in the second half. The only Virginia touchdown followed the Tiger fumble on the Clemson three-yard line.

Clemson was led defensively by Keith Adams. The junior registered 13 tackles. Adams also had two tackles for a loss of 13 yards. Charles Hafley had 12 tackles and Chad Carson added 10. Darrel Crutchfield had his best game as a Tiger. Crutchfield, who tore his ACL against Florida State the previous year, recorded seven tackles and four passes broken up. He was a big reason Clemson moved up to first in the nation in pass efficiency defense after the game.

Virginia Update

Virginia enters today's game with a 1-1 record. It will be the Cavaliers first game since Sept. 1 when they defeated Richmond. Virginia was to play Penn State on Thursday, Sept. 13, but the game was postponed, as all ACC games were, due to the tragedy that took place in New York and Washington, DC on Sept. 11. It is the first of two consecutive games in which the opposition will have three weeks to prepare for the Tigers. Georgia Tech will go from Sept. 8 until Sept. 29 without a game.

Clemson of course has not played since Sept. 8, a 38-14 win over Wofford, so both teams are well rested heading into today's game that will be shown on national TV by ESPN2.

Virginia is coached by Al Groh, a 1967 Virginia graduate who is one of four ACC coaches in their first year at the school. However, this is not Groh's first year as an ACC coach. He was the head coach at Wake Forest from 1981-86, so he has experience coming to Death Valley.

Groh has extensive background in coaching. He began his college coaching career in 1968 as the freshman coach at Army. He became the freshman coach at Virginia in 1970, then became a fulltime coach in 1971. He also has assistant coaching experience at North Carolina (1973-77), Air Force (178-79), Texas Tech (1980) and South Carolina (1988).

He also has NFL experience, serving as an assistant with the Atlanta Falcons (1987), New York Giants (1989-91, Cleveland Browns (1992), New England Patriots (1993-96) and New York Jets (1997-99). He was head coach with the Jets in 2000, posting a 9-7 record.

Groh has had teams that boasted outstanding offenses over the years. That was seen at the NFL level last year with the Jets. His offense gained over 500 yards of total offense against the World Champion and record-setting Baltimore Ravens late in the season, more than any other NFL team. Groh has some outstanding offensive players on Dantzler had an ACC record 210 yards rushing at Virginia a year ago, and soon will become the first ACC player to reach 2,000 yards rushing and 4,000 yards passing.

his Cavaliers team this year.

Arlen Harris is a junior running back who is third in the ACC in rushing with 89 yards per game. He ran for 99 yards in 24 attempts in his first career start against Richmond. Sophomore quarterback Bryson Spinner is fifth in the ACC in total offense and has a 129 passing efficiency rating, very close to the 134 that Woodrow Dantzler has recorded for the Tigers this year. His favorite target is Billy McMullen, who just might be the best wide receiver in the league. He is currently tied for the league lead in receptions and averages 75 receiving yards per game.

Virginia always has a top-flight defense. Groh was defensive coordinator of the Giants and Patriots in his NFL days. Angelo Crowell, a junior, is the top tackler on the team with 24 tackles, including two sacks, to lead the Virginia point prevention unit. John Duckett is second on the club with 15 tackles, while senior Darryl Sanders has 13 in two games. Virginia has allowed just five of 28 third down conversions, the best third-down conversion defense in the ACC.

Dantzler Nearing 4,000-2,000 Mark

Clemson quarterback Woodrow Dantzler enters the Virginia game with 1,712 yards rushing and 3,635 yards passing in regular season games in his Clemson career. He needs 288 yards rushing and 365 passing to become the first ACC player in history to reach 2,000 yards rushing and 4,000 yards passing in a career. ACC statistics do not include bowl games, thus the above qualifier. Including bowl games, Dantzler has 1,801 rushing and 3,820 passing in his four-year career.

So far this season, Dantzler has 101 yards rushing and 361 passing for 462 total, an average of 231 yards per game in total offense. He ranks second in the conference in total offense per game in the top 35 in the nation.

Dantzler is coming close to an ACC record. As listed above, he has 1,712 career rushing yards in regular season play, just 228 away from Mike Dunn's ACC record for career rushing yards by a quarterback. Dunn, a senior in 1978, had 1,939 rushing yards for the Blue Devils in his career. Dunn is also the last ACC player (1976) to lead his team in rushing and passing in the same regular season. Dantzler currently leads the Tigers in both areas. He led the Tigers in both areas including bowl games last year.

Dantzler became Clemson's career rushing leader among quarterbacks in the season opener against Central Florida when he gained 46 yards rushing. That put him ahead of Steve Fuller's 1,737 total. Dantzler now has 1,801 (including bowl games).

The graduate student has connected on 65.5 percent of his passes this year, a record pace, and is now at 56.7 percent for his career, second best in school history. He needs just four touchdowns rushing or passing to break Steve Fuller's touchdown responsibility record (44). He has improved to third in school history in passing efficiency and is also in the top five in total offense, passing yards and completions.

Zachery also Nearing ACC Record

Travis Zachery is the greatest receiving running back in Clemson history. He has 69 career receptions, 67 in regular season play. The ACC record for career receptions by a running back (regular season only) is 73 by Roger Boone of Duke. He played with the Blue Devils from 1987-89.

Zachery continues to be one of Clemson's top all-purpose players ever. The senior from Marietta, GA leads the team in receptions with nine and is tied with Woodrow Dantzler for the team lead in rushing with 101 yards.

Zachery has 69 career receptions including bowl games. The previous Clemson record was 45 by Raymond Priester and Ray Yauger. So, if Zachery continues at his current pace, he will have twice as many receptions as any other running back in Clemson history by the time his career ends.

Mance In top 10 in Punt and Kickoff Returns

Clemson Head Coach Tommy Bowden said during the preseason that he thought he would have the best special teams since he has been the head coach of the Tigers. That is proving to be a correct prediction, and the leader of the special teams production has been cornerback Brian Mance.

Mance has been a terror for opposing special teams coaches through the first two weeks of the season. His production is reflected in the first round of NCAA Statistics released Sept. 9. The junior was ranked fourth in the nation in kickoff returns with a 35.2-yard average on five returns, and ninth in punt returns with a 16.7-yard average on six returns. He has 176 yards on kickoff returns and an even 100 on punt returns for a total of 276 yards on 11 total returns, 25.1 return yards every time he has touched the ball.

Mance is the only player in the nation to rank in the top 10 in the country in both categories, making him king of return men in the nation. No Clemson player has ever finished the year ranked in the top 10 in the nation in both return categories. However, one other player, Antwuan Wyatt, ranked in the top 15 in both categories in 1995. That season Wyatt averaged 25.0 on kickoff returns to average 12th in the nation, and his 12.3-yard average on punt returns ranked 15th.

Mance had flashes of brilliance in the return game as a sophomore, so his production this year is really no surprise. Last year he had six kickoff returns for a 26-yard average, and had a Clemson record 32-yard average on six punt returns in 2000. That punt return total included an 88-yard return in Death Valley against Georgia Tech, fifth longest punt return by a Tiger in history.

Mance is off to quite a start overall. He was the ACC Defensive Back of the Week in the first game of the season when he had 10 tackles and a pass broken up against Central Florida. He was then chosen ACC Specialist of the Week for his performance against Wofford.

Mance is a prime reason Clemson ranked fifth in the nation in kickoff returns as a team and 10th in punt returns through games of Sept. 8. The Tigers are also 15th in the nation in net punting, a ranking that can be directly attributed to the fine performance from Wynn Kopp. The transfer from Georgia has a 43.7 average, but does not rank in the national stats because he doesn't have enough attempts (only seven in two games, a punter must average 3.6 punt attempts per game to qualify). His net punting average is over 40 yards a boot, something no Clemson player has done since 1984 (Dale Hatcher).

Clemson has also been perfect on placekicking, as Aaron Hunt is 1-1 on field goals and 8-8 on PATs. His 43-yarder against Wofford was a career long. Clemson has also been outstanding on kick coverage. Clemson opponents have just 19 total punt return yards, 6.3 a return, and the opposition has averaged just 16.8 yards per kickoff return.

Big Day for Clemson Big Macs

Saturday's win over Wofford was a big day for Clemson wide receiver J.J. McKelvey and defensive end Bryant McNeal. Both had a direct impact on Clemson's 38-14 victory with career best performances. In fact, both players went from zero in their prime stat category in the first game to leading the Tigers in the second.

Today's Game

McKelvey had eight receptions for 73 yards and two scores in the victory over the Terriers. That included six catches in the second period alone. McKelvey did not have a reception in the first game, then had the eight against Wofford. In fact, he had just three career receptions for 90 yards in his career entering that contest. He is now ranked in the top 10 in the ACC in receiving and is second to Travis Zachery for the season. McKelvey joined Rod Gardner as the only Clemson receivers to catch two touchdown passes in a game under Tommy Bowden.

McNeal did not have a tackle in the season opener against Central Florida. He had six in the Wofford game, including four tackles for loss, the top total for the Tigers against Wofford. That included two sacks and a caused fumble. McNeal had just nine career tackles for loss entering the Wofford game, then had four in that game. He joined Keith Adams as the only Tigers to have at least four tackles for loss in a game under Tommy Bowden. He was the first defensive lineman to have four tackles for loss in a game since Adrian Dingle had four against Furman in the 1998 season opener.

Carson, Leake top Clemson Tacklers

Chad Carson and John Leake are becoming quite a one-two punch on Clemson's second line of defense. Against Wofford's run-oriented attack numbers 45 and 46 combined for 34 tackles. Carson had 18 and Leake picked up a career high 16. Both players now have 25 for the season.

For Carson the 18 tackles against Wofford tied for his second highest single game total as a Tiger. The only performance that is higher is the 22-tackle performance he had against Georgia Tech at Death Valley last year. That is an ironic fact in itself considering that Carson's father played for Georgia Tech.

Carson now has 336 tackles for his career, ninth best in school history. He needs just three against Duke to move past Tim Jones into number-eight position. If he averages 10 tackles a game over the rest of the season he will finish his career ranked fourth in Clemson history, trailing only Bubba Brown, Anthony Simmons and Jeff Davis. That is impressive company.

Leake has a long way to go to catch Carson, but he is taking a similar path. Carson had just 11 tackles his freshman year as a reserve linebacker in 1998. Leake had nine as a reserve last year. Carson made the starting lineup as a sophomore in 1999 and had 27 tackles in his first two games. Leake has entered the starting lineup as a sophomore and has 25 tackles through his first two games.

West Puts in Extra Effort

Some Clemson fans might have seen a strange sight during post-game traffic of Clemson's 21-13 win over Central Florida on Sept. 1. Some fans caught in the traffic on College Avenue might have noted Assistant Coach Ron West riding a green bicycle, beating the considerable traffic as the result of a crowd of 79,500 people.

West borrowed the bike owned by one of his players, offensive lineman Nick DiPrimio to get across Route 123 in a timely fashion. The reason for his haste? West was in a hurry to get to Boone, NC to see his son, Brad, play for Appalachian State in its season opening game against Liberty.

The use of the bike enabled West to save considerable time. He then took a back route to Boone and he arrived with eight minutes to go in the half. His son, a freshman, did not play in the game, but it certainly meant a lot to Brad to have his father at his first college football game.

West is one of three Clemson assistant coaches with a son who plays college football. Offensive Coordinator and Assistant Head Coach Brad Scott is the father of Clemson wide receiver Jeff Scott. The younger Scott scored a touchdown on a 22-yard run in the first game of the season against UCF, the eventual game winner. He had a reception for five yards against Wofford. Jack Hines' son, Robert, is the starting quarterback at Tennessee-Martin.

Tigers Only Division I Team With Two Academic All-Americans

Clemson is the only school in the nation with two returning first-team Academic All-Americans on its roster. Linebacker Chad Carson and center Kyle Young were both named first-team Academic All-Americans in 2000. That was the first time in Clemson history the Tigers had two first-team selections in the same year.

Carson is a senior with a 3.94 career GPA in biological sciences. He led the Tigers in tackles last year and ranked fourth in the nation. Young led the Tigers in knockdown blocks last year with 120. He graduated from Clemson with a 3.98 career GPA last year and is now taking postgraduate courses. He was also a first-team Academic All-American in 1999 and is trying to become just the second ACC player in history to be a three time first-team selection. Mike Diminick, who played for Duke in the 1980s, is the only other ACC player to be a three-time first-team selection.

Merritt Leads Offensive Line vs. Wofford

Clemson gained 200 yards rushing and 286 passing in the win over Wofford on Sept. 8. The offensive line showed improvement over the season opener when the Tigers failed to reach the 300-yard total offense mark.

Will Merritt was average in the opener, but led the line against Wofford. He was named ACC Offensive Lineman of the Week for the second time in his career. The graduate student from Easley, SC, who is on the preseason Football Writers All-America list graded 89 percent and had 17 knockdown blocks. It was the second highest knockdown block total of Merritt's career. He had 21 in the win over N.C. State in 2000. Akil Smith also was lauded by Tommy Bowden after the game on Sunday. Smith, making his first start since 1999, had a 84 blocking grade from Clemson coaches.

Young Named to Rimington and Outland Watch List

Clemson center Kyle Young has been named one of 21 centers to the preseason Dave Rimington Award Watch List and one of 26 candidates for the Outland Trophy. The announcement about the Rimington Award was made in New York by the Boomer Esiason Foundation, the sponsor of the award. The award, which goes to the top center in college football, is named after former Nebraska All-American Dave Rimington. It will be presented Dec. 15 in Lincoln, NE.

Young was one of three finalists for the award last year, which was won by Nebraska's Dominic Raiola, who is now with the Detroit Lions. Young and Maryland center Melvin Fowler were the only ACC players among the 21 pre-season candidates.

Young is now on the preseason list for three major awards. In addition to the Outland Trophy (picked by the Football Writers Association), Young is also a preseason candidate for the Lombardi Award.

Young, a native of Clemson, is in his third year as a starter for the Tigers. He was named a second-team All-American by Football News last season and was a third-team All-American by The Sporting News. He has been a first-team Academic All-American each of the last two years and will attempt to become just the second offensive lineman in college football history to be a three-time first-team selection.

Today's Game Written By Tim Bourret

John Leake has 25 tackles to tie for the team lead.

Henry Owen

By Libby Kehn

His handicap on the golf course is a five. This past summer he shot his career best round of 70, which was two under par for the course he was playing. During the summer time you can find him on the fairways getting in at least five rounds per week. He has been spotted on the greens at the Master's at Augusta National picking up tips and tricks from the pros. Last season he attended the NCAA Men's Golf Championship in Durham, NC, to support close friend, Clemson All-American golfer, John Engler.

Who is this golf connoisseur walking around the Clemson campus? He is Henry Owen, the long snapper for the Clemson University Tigers football team.

That is right, the football team. Owen has the lowest handicap of any Tiger football player since Scott Beville, who coincidentally, was Clemson's long snapper between 1988 and 1990. Although he seems to have what it takes to play golf at the collegiate level, Owen is in his fourth season as the first-team long snapper for the Clemson football team. Entering today's game, Owen has snapped in 37 consecutive games for the Tigers.

Owen, a senior from Clover, SC, is a marketing major at Clemson. His parents, Hank and Kay Owen, both attended Clemson. His father is now an attorney and his mother is a school teacher in Clover. Henry's sister Katie is a 1999 Clemson graduate. She now lives in Ponte Vedra, FL and works for the ATP, the men's professional tennis tour.

"My family is a big Clemson family, but my parents never pressured me into deciding where I went to school," Owens said. "They never pressured me into any situations. They were always one to support. They supported my decision to play football here and to go to school here, and it's worked out for the best."

Owen grew up playing both football and golf. He started playing football as an offensive lineman for the Clover Junior High School team when he was in seventh grade. By his senior year in high school, he was playing running back and linebacker for the Clover Blue Eagles. However, he had been long snapping years before he started playing organized football. In third grade, Owen was a ball boy for the Clover football team. The long snapper for the varsity team taught Owen how to snap at the age of eight, and he has been snapping ever since.

The opportunity to play football for Clemson fell in Owen's lap. "I kind of got blessed by having a good friend and teammate who was recruited by some big schools," he said. Owen's high school friend and Clover varsity football teammate David Haselden, was being recruited heavily by Clemson during his senior year. When Haselden committed to Clemson, coach Reggie Herring contacted Owen and asked if he wanted to try to walk on as a long snapper. Owen jumped at the opportunity to play for Clemson and after a successful walk-on freshman season, was rewarded with a scholarship the following year.

When asked about a desire to play other positions, Owen said, "When I got here, I knew specifically that I was just going to be a long snapper.

That was the role the coaches wanted me to fill, and it was what they brought me in here for." Owen has been quite successful in meeting the coaches' expectations. In the last two years while Owen has been snapping, Clemson has had only one blocked punt. Owen has also been an integral part of the success Clemson has had in punt coverage. The longest punt return against the Tigers during the 2000 season was only 25 yards, and opponents had just 19 punt return yards in the first two games of this season.

Just as rewarding as it is for Owen to snap the game-winning field goal, is the feeling he gets as he splits a narrow fairway and lands on the green in regulation. Owen has enjoyed playing golf since he was young, but it was not until he got to college that his love for the sport became a passion. His freshman year, he was in the same class as Clemson golfer John Engler. The two instantly became good friends. "He (Engler) let me go out on the course and play golf with him. I would tell him about football, so it turned out to be a good trade off."

During his time at Clemson, Owen has become friends with all the members of the Tiger golf team. "They are some of my really good friends," he said. "And it's been a great opportunity to have a chance to play with them."

One of Owen's friends is former Clemson golfer Jani Saari, who graduated in May 2001. Saari returned to his home country of Finland, and has been pursuing a professional golf career. Owen has recently spent a lot of time trying to keep up with Saari's scores. "I look on the website that Jani sends me. I have to search around for his name because the web-sites are written in Finnish. I can only understand Jani's name, his score, and where he finished that week. The next week Jani will send me an email to let me know how he did so that I can make sure."

This past summer, Owen had the opportunity not only to play golf, but also to teach it. He worked as a counselor at two youth golf camps. At Gaston Country Club in Gaston, NC, near his home in Clover, Owen worked with five through 10-year-old campers on long irons and drivers. He helped teach the kids fundamentals such as proper stance, grip, and alignment. Owen also worked at Clemson golf coach Larry Penley's camps. He helped at the station on course management. Owen worked alongside Saari one week and Charles Warren, who is presently on the Buy.com Tour, the next. Of his experiences teaching golf, Owen said, "I really enjoyed working with the kids. They thought it was cool that I played football for Clemson and that I just enjoyed being on the golf course."

Throughout his career at Clemson, Owen has enjoyed his time on the fairways, however his most Henry Owen walked on the Clemson football team his freshman year as a long snapper, but by his sophomore year had been awarded a scholarship. Off the field, Owen has a golf handicap of five.

memorable moment as a Tiger was snapping the game winning field goal against South Carolina last season. "As soon as I snapped it, I saw Jeff (Scott) put it down, and I saw Aaron (Hunt) kick it," he remembered. "As soon as I saw him kick the ball I knew it was good. It was just an unbelievable feeling."

As for the possibility of continuing his football career, Owen said, "I never thought I'd get this far as a long snapper. Playing at the Division I-A college football level, the highest level there is, playing at a great school like Clemson with a great football history has been a great experience. It's been a dream come true, but I really don't have any aspirations to go on to the next level and play in the NFL. I probably don't have the size to compete in the NFL, so it's nothing I've really looked forward to or tried to work towards. I've just tried to be the best I can be for the Clemson football team."

Although he does not plan to pursue a professional career in either sport, there is no doubt that in all future Clemson football reunions that involve golf, Owen will be the first player drafted.

Terry Kinard

By Tim Bourret

Terry Kinard is the most decorated football player in Clemson history. Those honors will grow on Nov. 3 when he is inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame and the Clemson Ring of Honor.

A presentation will be made by former ACC Commissioner Gene Corrigan on behalf of the College Football Hall of Fame. Kinard will be inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in December at the annual National Football Foundation ceremonies in New York. He will also be honored at the College Football Hall of Fame in South Bend, IN in August 2002.

The Ring of Honor ceremony will take place at Death Valley prior to the Florida State game. It will be a special day for Kinard as it will also be the day we celebrate the 20-year anniversary of Clemson's National Championship, the greatest team accomplishment in Clemson football history.

Kinard, who played for the Tigers from 1978-82 and was named National Defensive Player of the Year by CBS Sports as a senior, will be just the second Clemson player in history to be honored by the College Football Hall of Fame, the first since Banks McFadden in 1959.

Ironically, Kinard burst on the national scene in South Bend in 1979. Starting as a freshman, Kinard had two fourth-quarter interceptions and seven tackles overall to lead Clemson to a 16-10 victory over the Irish. Now 22 years later, he will be inducted in the College Football Hall of Fame, which is located just two miles from Notre Dame Stadium.

"This is a dream come true," said Kinard. "It is something you don't expect, but when it does happen you are thrilled. It is a great honor when you consider that only one other Clemson player has been named to the Hall of Fame. To be alongside a legend like Banks McFadden means a great deal.

"Clemson gave me the opportunity. I was very fortunate, I could not have picked a better place to go to school. I played with a lot of great players at Clemson, especially guys on our defense like Jeff Davis, Jeff Bryant and many others. I certainly could not have made it to the Hall of Fame without the great players we had at Clemson at that time.

"I also have to thank Coach (Danny) Ford and the other coaches. I especially have to thank coach Willie Anderson, who recruited me. Years later he gave me the opportunity to go to Oklahoma and serve on his (high school) coaching staff. He impressed upon me the importance of finishing my degree, which I did (from Langston University in Oklahoma)."

Kinard is also grateful to the people at Clemson who have had a positive effect on his career. One of those people is Bert Henderson, associate executive director of IPTAY. "My freshman year I was red-shirted and I needed to have shoulder surgery," said Kinard. "Bert drove me to the hospital. I wasn't thrilled about the prospect of having surgery—not at all! He had to talk me into it.

"We sat down and talked about it a long time, and he convinced me that it was something I needed to do for my own good. I went ahead and had it done, and Bert gave me a lot of support and inspiration. That was a rough time for me. I had to sit out and redshirt, while the rest of the team went on to an 11-1 season (1978). But, sitting out that year was the best thing that could have happened to me because of maturity. I really wasn't ready physically, to compete as a freshman."

Kinard also credits Bill D'Andrea, currently Clemson's associate athletic director for student-athlete enrichment, for encouraging him to go back to school and finish his degree requirements. "Bert and Bill D'Andrea stayed on me about getting my degree. Bill was on me all the time. No matter where he saw me, that was the first thing that came out of his mouth. And, it was the same with my mom."

The door then opened in Oklahoma when Anderson offered Kinard a job and an opportunity to get his degree. "It has made a world of difference. I am sure it made a difference in me getting into the Hall of Fame. Coach Anderson cared about me many years after I left Clemson and it says a lot about him and the people at Clemson."

Kinard had outside motivating factors, but in the end he had to do it himself. "It was pretty tough, after being out of school for so long. It was very different. But, in a sense, it was also much easier. When you come in as a freshman, you're not very disciplined towards school. Coming back, I was more mature and I knew how to go about studying and planning my time. I found myself staying on top of things, rather than putting everything off until the last minute." Today, Kinard works in Atlanta serving in management for the Burger King Corporation.

A native of Sumter, SC, Kinard was a first-team Associated Press All-American in 1981 and 1982, the only two-time first-team AP All-American in school history. He was in fact a unanimous selection in 1982, the only unanimous first-team All-American in Clemson history.

Kinard recorded 17 interceptions during his

Kinard will be inducted into the Clemson Ring of Honor prior to the Florida State game on Nov. 3.

Kinard led a Clemson defense that ranked in the top 10 in scoring defense in 1981 and 1982.

Clemson career, still the high mark in school history and second in ACC history. He ranked in the top 15 in the nation in interceptions in 1981 and 1982 and was a major reason Clemson had a combined record of 21-1-1 over those two years. Clemson's defense ranked in the top 10 in the nation in scoring defense each year. He was Clemson's second leading tackler on the 1981 National Championship team and led the 1982 squad that finished eighth in the final Associated Press poll.

Kinard rates the national championship experience as the highlight of his football career. "I was very fortunate to have gone from Clemson to play in the NFL. But I'd have to say that my experience at Clemson, playing with that group of guys on the National Championship team was more exciting than anything I did on any other level. It definitely made an impact on my life. The closeness of that group and the experiences we shared will never be forgotten.

"At the beginning of that year, none of us had any idea that the season would turn out the way it did. I'm not sure at what point it started to sink in that we were going to be in a position to compete for the National Championship. I'm not sure any of us were really thinking that way. But, we knew we were part of something special because of the way we won games that year. We won some close, tough games.

"As the season progressed, we came to believe that every time we stepped out on the field we were going to win. Part of that was the closeness of the group. Part of it was that we had some players who could really play. You don't make it through a season like that without great players, guys who can make things happen."

At the conclusion of his Clemson career, Kinard was chosen in the first round of the NFL draft by the New York Giants, the 10th overall pick of the draft. He played seven years for the Giants, including the team's 1986 Super Bowl Championship season. Kinard was named to the NFL All-Rookie team in 1983 and the Pro Bowl in 1988.

Since his retirement from the game, Kinard was named to Sports Illustrated's All-Century team of college football. In 2000 he was named Clemson's top player of the 20th Century by CNNsi.com. He was also chosen to the USA Today All-Decade team for the 1980s. In 1996 he was named to Clemson's Centennial Team and received more votes than any other defensive player.

"Terry Kinard was a dominating player because he was a great tackler who also could break on the ball and make the interception," said Danny Ford, who was Kinard's Head Coach his entire career at Clemson. "I haven't seen a player who could dominate a game from the secondary like he could. He covered a lot of ground, he made a coach feel secure about the secondary.

"He had the ability to be a dominant player from the time he was a freshman. You don't see a lot of freshman safeties take over a game in Notre Dame Stadium, but he did that when we defeated Notre Dame in 1979.

"When you look at what Terry Kinard accomplished individually at Clemson and what Clemson did as a team during his career, you can see that he is most qualified to be in the College Football Hall of Fame."

Clemson vs. Virginia Series

By Sam Blackman

When looking at the Clemson-Virginia series in football, the series looks one sided in favor of Clemson.

The Tigers lead the overall series with Virginia 34-5-1, but in the last 10 seasons, the Tigers have just a 5-4-1 record vs. the Cavaliers. The Tigers won the first 29 games in the series that started in 1955. The Cavaliers finally broke the streak in 1990, but the Cavaliers had a few chances to break the infamous streak with Clemson through the years, but the Tigers always had an answer. Some observers would swear Clemson had a rabbit's foot or other token with them when playing the Cavaliers. Three of Clemson's four greatest comebacks have come against the Virginia Cavaliers.

In the first meeting on Sept. 24, 1955, Clemson won easily 20-7. In 1956, the Tigers won 7-0, which gave Clemson the ACC Championship, as Charlie Bussey scored on a one-yard run with 53 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

It took some mystical powers in the 1966 game, for the Tigers to win. It was fortunate for Clemson that former IPTAY Executive Secretary Gene Willimon acted when he did. Otherwise Clemson might not have beaten Virginia, 40-35, on Sept. 24, 1966, in the season opener for the Tigers.

It was Willimon's idea to put a rock from Death Valley, CA on a pedestal on top of the hill during the summer of 1966, where the Tigers enter the stadium and make their famous entrance. Alumnus S.C. Jones gave Coach Frank Howard the rock after a visit to Death Valley, CA. Jones must have thought it to be an appropriate gift to Howard as the stadium had been called Death Valley by friend and foe alike for many years prior to 1966.

Howard told Willimon to do something with the rock. Willimon had a brainstorm and immediately came up with the idea of putting it on a pedestal overlooking the playing field where it still sits today, more than 35 years later.

Even though the players did not begin touching the rock for good luck until a year later, the rock must have brought the Tigers good luck, or as former Head Coach Frank Howard states, "mystical powers" in the 40-35 win over Virginia in 1966. The Tigers managed to win despite losing five fumbles and giving up 429 yards total offense. It was obvious some kind of strange powers must have been with the Tigers on this particular day.

It also did not hurt the Tigers' chances, that Buddy Gore rushed for 117 yards in this game, and Clemson's Jimmy Addison was 12 for 19 in passing for 283 yards, then the second most passing yards in a game in Clemson history.

The Tigers went ahead in the ACC contest early in the second period on the strength of a 68-yard punt return by Frank Liberatore, a touchdown pass from Addison to Phil Rogers and the running of Buddy Gore. The second and third quarters belonged solely to the Bob Davis-led Cavaliers, and with the help of Clemson fumbles, Virginia took a 35-18 lead with 3:06 left to go in the third quarter.

Edgar McGee, Phil Rogers and Wayne Bell caught key passes to bring Clemson to a 35-33 deficit with about three minutes to play.

Faced with a third down and short yardage on Clemson's 25-yard line, the Tigers were driving for the go-ahead score. "We called a pass play that had resulted in several earlier completions to our split end Wayne Bell," recalled Clemson quarterback Jimmy Addison.

"Wayne found an open spot between the linebackers, and the Virginia cornerback came from his deep position to cover the open receiver. Jacky Jackson, who had run from his tailback position down the left sideline, made a beautiful catch behind that cornerback and out-ran the safety man to the end zone." That gave the Tigers a 40-35 advantage with 3:49 left and proved to be the winning touchdown.

"I remember this play distinctly," said Addison who later would attend law school at Virginia. "I thought I had over-thrown Jackson, but he put it in second gear and ran underneath the pass."

However the Cavaliers had one more chance and Davis marched Virginia down the field. With 1:49 left to go in the game, the Cavaliers had a second and 10 situation on the Tigers' 14-yard line. Davis's pass was intercepted by Phil Marion and the Tigers proceeded to run out the clock.

Jimmy Addison was the Associated Press Back-of-the-Week, while Virginia's Quarterback Bob Davis was named Sports Illustrated's Back-of-the-Week. It is probably the only time two opposing players in the same game have been named national players-of-the-week in the history of college football.

Davis set the Atlantic Coast Conference's record for most passes attempted and completed, records that have since been broken. He finished the game hitting 26 of 48 passes for 312 yards, while the Tigers' Addison was 12 for 19 in passing for 283 yards and three scores. Addison is still third on the Clemson individual highest single game passing efficiency list for his performance against the Cavaliers with a 240.39 mark, but it is first among Tiger quarterbacks who have thrown at least 15 passes in a game.

"As someone suggested on the sidelines during the fourth quarter," continued Addison, "the university should have run everyone out of the stadium before the fourth quarter and made them pay to re-enter." It was truly a ball game worth two admissions.

On Oct. 13, 1973, Virginia took a 27-18 lead late in the third quarter as former Tiger player Mike Lacika fell on a Clemson fumble in the Tiger end zone.

Clemson's Frank Wise recovered a Kent Merritt fumble at the Virginia 28, and six plays later Smiley Sanders went the last two yards up the middle. Bob Burgess added the PAT and the Tigers were down 27-25 with 12:23 left in the game. After three exchanges of the ball on punts, Clemson again had possession on its own 42 with 7:50 to play.

On the fourth play of the drive, Ken Pengitore hit Jim Lanzendoen for an eight-yard touchdown. Burgess' PAT with 6:44 to play gave Clemson its first lead at 32-27.

Jim Ness intercepted a Virginia pass but four plays later Ken Callicutt fumbled, the Tigers' fourth lost fumble of the game and the Cavaliers had it at their own 26 with 4:15 remaining.

Six plays later, Virginia had it first and ten at the Clemson 20 looking for the go-ahead score. But after a couple of runs which netted one yard and an incomplete pass, the Wahoos had a fourth and nine at Clemson's 17. George Allen, Jr. dropped back, scrambled, threw to tight end Ken Shelton, but freshman Travers Webb brought the Wahoo tight end down on the Clemson 11, three yards short of the first down and the Tigers took over with just 56 seconds to go.

Clemson vs. Virginia Series

But the game was not over as the Cav defense held and forced a punting situation with a fourth and 12 at the 10. Nine seconds remained as Clemson took a delay penalty.

Clemson punter Mitch Tyner, who had been instructed to take a safety and receive a free kick, took the snap deep in the Tiger end zone, waited for the rush, then scampered right, then left, away from the Cavalier Linemen, and finally turned up the field. There was no time left on the clock when Tyner was bumped out of bounds at the 14, thus preventing Virginia from having another play and preserving Clemson's five-point victory. The game consisted of 59 points and 900 yards of total offense between the two teams.

Obed Ariri kicked a 52-yard field goal with six seconds remaining to cap a furious fourth-quarter comeback that gave Clemson a 27-24 victory on Oct. 11, 1980. Trailing by 14 points going into the fourth quarter, the Tigers scored a touchdown on a 26-yard run by Brendon Crite after a perfect pitch by quarterback Homer Jordan. Then with less than four minutes remaining, Willie Underwood blocked a punt, Bill Smith scooped up the ball, and ran 11 yards for the tying TD. The Tigers' defense held and a short Tiger drive setup Ariri's clutch field goal.

On Oct. 8, 1988, Virginia took a 7-3 lead with 5:27 remaining in the game as quarterback Shawn Moore hit receiver Herman Moore in the end zone on a 14-yard alley-oop scoring strike.

With time running down, the Tigers took over at their own 20-yardline and drove to the Virginia 14. Chip Davis lined up at wideout without any defensive coverage and Rodney Williams took advantage of the situation, changing the play at the line of scrimmage and passing for a 14-yard touchdown.

On Sept. 8, 1990, ninth-ranked Clemson faced 14th-Virginia in the second game of the season. The Cavaliers were outstanding on defense and on special teams and defeated Clemson for the first time ever. The Tigers had a perfect 29-0 record against Virginia heading into the game that was televised by ESPN.

Clemson scored first with a DeChane Cameron 25-yard run early in the second quarter. Virginia scored two field goals in the second quarter and Clemson led 7-6 at the half. Virginia's Terry Kirby scored on a four-yard run. Later in the quarter, Jason Wallace returned a punt 79 yards to the Clemson seven-yard line. This set up a 12-yard scoring pass from Shawn Moore to Herman Moore, giving Virginia a 20-7 lead heading into the final period. Clemson drove inside the Cavalier 35 twice in the fourth period, but failed to score both times.

On Oct. 12, 1991, the Tigers scored 10 points in the last four minutes of the game and the two teams tied 20-20 at Clemson. The Cavaliers had a 20-10 lead with 7:30 left in the game. Clemson's Rudy Harris, who had 102 yards rushing on the day, scored from one yard out with 3:22 left bringing Clemson to within three.

The Cavs tried to run out the clock and gain their second straight victory over the Tigers. On a third and two from the Virginia 45, Terry Kirby was hit by Clemson's Robert O'Neal at the Virginia 48, a spot that was already a Cavalier first down. Clemson's Kenzil Jackson recovered the fumble with 2:49 left and Clemson still had hope.

Clemson drove to the Virginia 27 and Nelson Welch hit the clutch 44-yard field goal with 46 seconds left to tie the score. The Cavs drove deep into Clemson territory, but with one second left, Michael Husted lined up for a 34-yard field goal. Wayne Simmons got a hand on the ball and the kick was wide, allowing Clemson to gain the tie.

Oct. 10, 1992, was a landmark date in Clemson history. Clemson overcame a 28-point deficit in defeating 10th-ranked Virginia 29-28. It was just the third win over a top-10 team on the road in Clemson history.

Virginia took a 28-0 lead in the second quarter, with quarterback Bobby Goodman throwing four touchdown passes. Clemson scored with 1:53 remaining when quarterback Louis Solomon, who replaced the injured Richard Moncreif took the ball for a 64-yard scoring rush making the halftime score 28-7 in Virginia's favor.

Clemson started the second half with two rushing touchdowns from Rudy Harris and Rodney Blunt to cut Virginia's leads to 28-20 heading into the final period. With just 5:31 left in the contest, Harris, who had 12 carries for 96 yards and two touchdowns in the game, bullied his way for the score from 27 yards out. A two-point conversion failed but the lead was now cut to 28-26.

A Darnell Stephens interception gave Clemson possession at the Virginia 35 with 3:53 left in the game. A 45-yard pass from Solomon to Larry Ryans put the ball at the Virginia nine. Three plays later Nelson Welch completed the comeback with a 32-yard field goal for a 29-28 Tiger win.

The comeback was the greatest in Clemson football history in terms of gaining victory after trailing by the largest deficit at any time in a game. In fact, it was just three points away from tying the national record for the greatest comeback in college football history.

Rodney Williams quarterbacked the Tigers to four wins over Virginia between 1985-88.

President James F. Barker

Building A Future For Clemson

ties enhancements will include the opening of a new biotechnology complex, the renovation of Fike Recreation Center, and significant progress on the Tiger Pride athletics facilities campaign.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, the former dean of the university's College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities was named president in October 1999.

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in St. Louis. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

He is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. Barker was named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. He also has been a partner in an architectural practice.

He has received honorary doctorate degrees from South Carolina State University and Mars Hill College and has served on the Truman Scholars Selection Committee.

As a dean at Clemson, Barker co-founded the S.C. Design Arts Partnership to support community design outreach projects, initiated the Charleston Architecture Center, established the university's "Arts in April" program, and developed a Mayors' Institute to help city leaders learn how to manage issues related to growth and development.

Despite his new responsibilities as president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. He is part of a team of instructors who teach an undergraduate course exploring "a sense of place" in architecture, literature, and history.

"I think it's important that a president never lose touch with the classroom," he said.

The Barkers — Jim and Marcia — have two sons: Britt, a student at Daniel High School, and Jacob, who graduated from the University of North Carolina, attending on a baseball scholarship, and is now enrolled in Graduate School at Clemson.

Clemson University's 14th President, James F. Barker, brought to the job a clear vision of Clemson's future that since has evolved into a new set of goals designed to make Clemson one of the nations' top 20 public universities.

To achieve that ambitious goal, Barker is focusing on building the quality of teaching, research and service programs, as well increasing Clemson's involvement in international programs, recruiting stronger students, improving the library, winning athletic championships, and providing more resources in and out of the classroom.

"South Carolina students deserve to have access to a top-tier education without leaving their home state," he said. "Building Clemson's academic, research and service programs to the level where we can compete with anyone will benefit our state, our students, and our alumni."

Considerable progress is already being made toward achieving a top-20 ranking. In the past year, Clemson was named TIME Magazine's Public College of the Year, saw the largest one-year increase in research funding in history, and its highest SAT average among freshmen.

More progress is expected this year. A new academic support center will give students access to tutoring, counseling, workshops and other resources to help them improve their academic performance. A new Rutland Center for Ethics will help faculty, students and members of the community foster skills for making ethical judgments. Facili-

Jim Barker, above with wife Marcia, has set a goal to make Clemson one of the top 20 Public Universities in the nation.

Head Coach Tommy Bowden

It hasn't taken Tommy Bowden long to bring Clemson back to its customary place among the elite programs in the nation. A team with a 3-8 record in 1998, Clemson was ranked third in the nation in the USA Today Poll of Oct. 22, 2000 after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

Making a swift improvement is nothing new for Bowden. In 1997, he took over a 4-7 Tulane program and brought the Green Wave to a 7-4 mark in his first year. In 1998, the improvement continued with an 11-0 regular season and number-seven national ranking. In 1999, Bowden inherited a 3-8 Clemson team and elevated the Tigers to a bowl game and 6-6 final record. The 2000 Tigers concluded the season with a 9-3 record, its high win total since 1993.

As you can see, a pattern has formed in Tommy Bowden's head coaching career. In each of his first four years he has coached his team to exactly a three-win improvement over the previous year, believed to be a first in Division I college football history. If he brings Clemson to another three-win improvement in 2001 it really would be newsworthy, because the Tigers would have a 12-0 record, and a National Championship. Bowden already is just the third coach in Clemson history to bring the Tigers to a three-win improvement in consecutive years and is one of just two Division I coaches (John Robinson at UNLV) to do it over the 1999 and 2000 seasons.

In his first two years at Clemson, Bowden has a 15-9 record with the Tigers, and two bowl appearances. In 2001, he will attempt to do something that predecessors Jess Neely, Frank Howard, Charley Pell, Danny Ford and Ken Hatfield all failed to do: take the Tigers to a bowl game each of his first three years with the program.

The Tigers set 57 school records in 2000 and have set 98 marks in the 24 games Bowden has served as head coach, over four per game. The 2000 season produced a Heisman Trophy contender in quarterback Woodrow Dantzler, who personally set 16 of the 45 individual bests recorded by Clemson athletes last season. The 12 team records set in 2000 included total offense per game in a season (437), touchdowns in a season (55) and most points in a season (416).

Clemson was one of the most balanced teams in the nation in 2000. Clemson ranked in the top 15 in the nation in scoring offense, total offense and rushing offense. It had a top 25 ranking in passing efficiency offense. Clemson was one of six teams nationally to average more than 200 yards rushing and 200 yards passing in 2000. He is the only Division I coach to average at least 190 of each category and at least 430 yards of total offense over the last four years.

For the first time ever, Clemson had two 1000-yard rushers and a 1000-yard receiver on the same team. Defensively, Chad Carson and Keith Adams both ranked in the top 10 in the nation in tackles per game and four Tigers were named first-team All-ACC, the high figure since 1991.

His second Clemson team was one of the most decorated in history. Six different Clemson players were finalists or semifinalist for national position awards, including linebacker Keith Adams, who was one of the final three candidates for the Butkus Award. Center Kyle Young was one of the top three candidates for the Dave Rimington Award. Four players were named All-Americans and eight players were first or second-team all-conference selections.

Young and Chad Carson were both named first-team Academic All-Americans, making Clemson the only Division I-A school in the nation to have a pair of first-team selections. For the second straight year the football team had its highest team GPA on record and a record number of ACC Academic honor roll recipients. Seven starters on the 2001 team already have degrees from Clemson.

When Bowden came to Clemson, he had one simple goal — Improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden's goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach of the Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation's third toughest regular season schedule according to Jeff Sagarin. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final conference standings, a six-place improvement over the previous season, the greatest one season jump in ACC history in league play.

The Tigers also made a four-game ACC win improvement in 1999. It was just the fifth time in ACC history that a team made that big of a league victory jump. Bowden had taken over a team with a losing record and brought it to a bowl game in his first season, just the sixth coach in ACC history to accomplish that feat.

The Clemson program set or tied 41 school records in Bowden's first year, including 26 on offense. Ironically, Bowden's first Tulane team set or tied 26 offensive school records.

The improvements in the ACC standings were thanks in large part to an innovative offensive attack. The Clemson offense ended the season averaging 402.6 yards per game, nearly a 100-yard per game improvement over 1998. The Tigers scored 26.8 points per game in 1999 compared to 19.8 in 1998. Clemson's 42 touchdowns in 1999 ranked fifth best in school history.

In 1998, Clemson ranked 103rd in the nation in turnover margin, but in 1999 the Tigers were 11th, an incredible 92-place improvement in the rankings. Clemson has a 209-80 advantage in points off turnovers in his first two years at Clemson.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson was first in the ACC in that category for the second straight season, and the final total established a school record. Three players (Keith Adams - 15.5, Chad Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top four tacklers in the league.

The Bowden Family: Tommy, Linda, Lauren and Ryan.

Adams, a sophomore that season, finished the season with 186 tackles, highest in the nation, and broke the Clemson single season tackle record held by Anthony Simmons. They all contributed to the 17th best pass efficiency defense in the nation, a unit that had 19 interceptions, ninth highest in the country.

Thanks to the wide open offensive attack several Clemson players made their presence felt in the national rankings and the Clemson record book. Sophomore running back Travis Zachery had 16 touchdowns to rank ninth in the country in scoring.

Junior wide receiver Rod Gardner became the school's first 1000-yard receiver. Gardner had 80 receptions for 1084 yards, Clemson single season records in both areas. He was 17th in the nation in receptions per game with a 6.6 mark. His yards per game average of 91.7 was 23rd best in the nation.

For the first time in Clemson history two Tiger quarterbacks threw for over 1000 yards in a season. Woodrow Dantzler passed for 1506 yards, while Brandon Streeter passed for 1466 yards during the regular season. The two diametrically opposite quarterbacks had total offense games over 350 yards, a testimony to Bowden's offensive system.

Clemson played the third toughest schedule in the nation in 1999. Four of Clemson's losses came against teams ranked in the top 15 of the final AP poll. Bowden Bowl I, the first ever meeting between father and son head coaches in college football history, took place on October 23, 1999. Bowden faced his father Bobby's top ranked Florida State team in Death Valley in front of a national television audience. The Tigers lost a tough battle to the eventual National Champions, 17-14, the closest margin of victory for the Seminoles and the fewest points they recorded all season by two touchdowns.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team's fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

His Tulane team had a 22-game average of 39.7 points, 5.1 touchdowns, 463 yards of total offense, 270.5 yards passing, and 192.6 yards rushing. The Green Wave averaged 6.34 yards per play, and converted on third down 47 percent of the time.

Some say the most telling statistic in terms of wins and losses and the most telling statistic when it comes to coaching ability is turnover margin. The Green Wave ranked fifth in the nation in turnover margin each of his seasons at Tulane.

It didn't take Bowden long to put Tulane back on the college football landscape. In his first year, Tulane was picked last in the preseason polls of Conference USA. But, he led the New Orleans based school to a 7-4 record, a second-place conference standing with just one league loss, and set 33 school records in the process, including 26 on offense.

Tulane's accomplishments on offense were noteworthy in 1997, but their offensive charts reached uncharted areas in 1998. Tulane stood as the only school in the nation that averaged over 300 yards per game passing and 200 yards per game rushing. The team ranked fourth in the nation in total offense (507.1 per game) and second in scoring (45.4 points per game).

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight contests in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense.

They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays.

The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach of the Year.

Bowden's team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979 and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated BYU in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this "Wonder Years" environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden's decision to enter the coaching world.

The fatherly influence of a college coach who reached 300 career wins against his son in 1999, also had an influence on other members of the family. Terry has been a head coach at Samford and Auburn, posting a 47-17-1 record at the latter. Terry serves as an in-studio commentator for ABC's college football package. Jeff Bowden is in his seventh year as wide receivers coach at Florida State, his first as offensive coordinator.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-74-75 and then for Frank Signetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Signetti's staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a GA. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

That experience confirmed to Bowden that he was in a profession that would be his life's work. The Seminoles posted a 19-4 mark in his two seasons at Florida State.

In 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the Spring practice session of 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers running backs coach for the 1980 season. Among the players he coached was James Brooks, who went on to a 13-year NFL career and is still second in Auburn history in rushing.

tory in rushing.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked 13th in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record and a Gator Bowl championship.

In 1983, Bowden accepted his first job as a coordinator. He served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the Blue Devils quarterbacks coach and offensive coordinator. It was as the Duke offensive coordinator that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to an NFL career.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was at Alabama that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Alabama Offensive Coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator position, serving Kentucky as its offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That season he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He would remain with the SEC Tigers for six years, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn was a combined 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four Associated Press top 25 seasons, including a number-four final ranking in 1993 and a number-nine final rating in 1994. The Tigers were 20-1-1 in 1993-94 combined. Bowden worked under his brother Terry Bowden for his last four years at Auburn and the Tigers had a 36-9-1 record with both Bowdens on the staff.

Born on July 10, 1954, in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown High in West Virginia. The couple has two children, Ryan (19), a sophomore at Clemson, and Lauren (16) a junior at Daniel High in Clemson.

Break From Tradition.

Traditionally, rich aesthetics, cost-effectiveness and color haven't gone hand in hand. If you wanted fashion color, you had to go to a specialty boutique and it wasn't going to be cheap. With Eastman's Chromspun® and Estron® yarns — you can have your cake and eat it too.

Chromspun solution dyed acetate yarn is available in a wide range of fashion colors and can also be produced in custom colors. It complements our popular Estron line of white yarns. Plus, we make all Eastman® yarns in the USA. As a matter of fact, Chromspun is the only colored acetate yarn made in America. That's a tradition we're proud of.

Death Valley

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambience of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999.

In the 1970s, 1980s and 1990s, various publications named top 10 stadiums in college football and Clemson Memorial Stadium, affectionately known as "Death Valley," has been a common denominator on those lists.

The facility's mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson's corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 208 games in the previous 59 years there (208-81-7) and has won over 70 percent of the contests. Thirty-three times since 1983, crowds have exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow. This year Clemson celebrates its 60th year in this outstanding facility.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten half-way through.

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the

Clemson has had 33 crowds of more than 80,000 in Death Valley, including a record of 86,092 for Bowden field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 pm and we played at 2:00 pm." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled-the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Clemson Traditions

First Friday Parade

The Clemson football season kicks off each year with the annual First Friday Parade. The once-a-year event takes place on the Friday afternoon prior to the first home game (Aug. 31 this year). Floats from various fraternities and sororities and other campus organizations are represented in the parade that rolls down highway 93 in front of the President's Home in Clemson. The parade culminated at the Amphitheater in the heart of campus where the first Pep Rally of the year takes place.

The Grant Marshal of parade is featured at the pep rally. Last year, President Jim Barker was the Grand Marshal. At the conclusion of the parade route he disappeared for a few moments, only to reappear on the stage of the amphitheater in the Tiger mascot's suit. Other Grand Marshals have been Clemson legend Frank Howard, former PGA Tour pro Dillard Pruitt, Hall of Fame coach Jess Neely and noted television announcers Brent Musburger and Ara Parseghian.

Homecoming

Tigerama is the World's largest pep rally and it takes place on the Friday evening prior to Homecoming. This combination pep rally, beauty pageant, fireworks display and skit presentation attacks over 30,000 people. It was the brainchild of former Clemson legend Gator Farr, who was the master of pep rallies in the 1940s and 1950s. This year Tigerama will be held at Death Valley on Oct. 19 at 7:00 PM.

Clemson will face North Carolina on Homecoming on Oct. 20 this year. The Tigers are 26-2-2 since 1971 on Homecoming with the only losses coming to Georgia Tech in 1989 and to Virginia in 1997. The first homecoming game played at Clemson took place on Sept. 30, 1922 when Centre defeated Clemson at Riggs Field, 21-0.

Clemson has celebrated Homecoming every year since 1922 with the exception of the 1930 and 1938 seasons. Clemson has a 56-18-3 record on Homecoming games over the years, a .755 winning percentage and has outscored the opposition 1644-1010 in those previous 77 games. The average margin of victory is 21 to 13.

Howard's Rock

When the Clemson team gathers to Run Down the Hill (see Running Down the Hill) the players rub Howard's Rock because of the mystical powers it is supposed to give Clemson players. The rock is mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill and was given to Coach Frank Howard by a friend (S.C. Jones' 19) who picked it up in Death Valley, CA. The Rock was first placed on the pedestal at the top of the hill on Sept. 24, 1966, a game Clemson won 40-35 over Virginia. The team started rubbing the rock for the first game of 1967, a 23-6 win over Wake Forest on Sept. 23, 1967. The pedestal was refurbished prior to the 2000 season.

Running Down the Hill

Running Down the Hill is one of the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint. After Clemson's last warmup, the team retreats to the home dressing room located under the West Stands. At about 12:50 (for normal 1:00 P.M. game), the team boards two buses and drives around the periphery of the stadium to the east side of the field.

After everyone is properly collected, the cannon sounds, Tiger Rag is played and Clemson charges down the hill (exactly 100 feet top to bottom) and onto the field. It is one of the most celebrated entrances in sport. The Tigers have done it for every game since 1942, except for 1970, 1971 and four games of the 1972 season.

In all, the Tigers have run down the hill 280 times heading into 2001. How in the world did the tradition of running down the hill start? There is no long involved explanation. It used to be the quickest way to get to the field. When the stadium was built in 1942 the football lockerrooms were up the street in Fike Fieldhouse.

When the players were finished getting dressed they used to walk out the front door and walk down the street to "The Hill". Coach Howard continued the tradition when lockerrooms were finally built inside the stadium because Clemson fans used to get so fired up when they gathered at the top of the hill. That's when the buses came into use to spend the trip from the lockerroom to the other side of the stadium. Clemson now has a record of 202-72-7, a .731 percentage winning mark, when they run down the hill. Clemson is 6-9 (40 percent) when it doesn't use the hill as its entrance.

The Tiger Paw

John Antonio holds a special place in the hearts of Tiger fans and in the pocketbooks of sports marketing entrepreneurs. Antonio invented the Tiger paw, the distinctive logo of the Clemson athletic teams that has become synonymous with this University's athletic success.

Antonio was an innovative account executive with Henderson Advertising in Greenville, and prior to the 1970 season, unveiled the Paw as Clemson's new logo. It has shown up all over the country on items owned by Clemson fans. Many institutions with a feline as mascot have used the logo, or an impression of it.

Antonio also came up with the phrase, "Fly the friendly skies of United," when he worked for the Leo Burnette Agency in Chicago. "I've never had a logo or an emblem copied as much as the Tiger Paw," said Antonio, now 70 and living in Greenville.

Antonio still remembers the day he made the presentation of the Tiger Paw to Frank Howard, then the Clemson Athletic Director. "He wasn't saying much at all," recalled Antonio in an article in the Greenville News by Alyce Atkinson on Feb. 16, 1997. "I kind of thought I was losing this fight."

At this point Antonio pulled out an orange football helmet with a tiger paw painted on the side.

"Coach Howard's eyes got as big as saucers and he smiled. From there it was downhill. Coach Howard wanted that helmet." Those Tiger paws are still on the Clemson helmets today.

TIGER MASCOT

Since 1954, a Clemson student has adorned the mascot suit to entertain the Clemson faithful. Joined in 1993 by the Tiger Cub, these furry creatures can be seen imitating game officials (now against the rules) signing autographs, getting their pictures taken with dignitaries like Presidents Reagan and Bush, shooting the cannon, or doing pushups each time Clemson scores. We keep pushup records. Last year, thanks to Tommy Bowden's record-breaking offense, Jon Potter broke the single season pushup record by over 300 pushups.

Running Down the Hill

What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Clemson Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season. Less than a year before Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was at war.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a walk down Williamson Road from Fike Field House's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the hill behind the east end zone. There were no dressing facilities in the west end zone—only a big clock where the hands turned, and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the big scoreboard now stands and jog down the hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no tiger paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side straddle hop.

That's pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the Clemson class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA, and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, CA, to Death Valley, South Carolina."

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike for a year or more. One day Howard was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was the executive secretary of IPTAY, to, "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office."

Willimon didn't think that was the way a rock should be treated. After all, it had been brought 3000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-sixties, Memorial Stadium was pretty well living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open the season each year by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shutouts in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting killed by the Tigers regularly. In 1948 McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

Running Down the Hill

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next three or four years, but when Howard started calling it 'Death Valley' in the 1950's, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 50th season in the 'valley' in 1991.

But getting back to Howard's rock.

The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966, on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jack Jackson in the fourth period. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the hill September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest, 23-6. Prior to running down the hill that day, Howard told his players: "If you're going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you're not, keep your filthy hands off it." Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west end zone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971 and the first four of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the hill, their record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above—280 times heading into the 2001 season.

After Clemson's final warm-up, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west end zone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east end zone and debarks to the top of the hill behind Howard's Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying tiger paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up 'Tiger Rag'...The frenzy starts in all sincerity...and usually lasts two and a half to three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

Matt Schell

By Marsha Byers

Matt Schell came to Clemson in the fall of 1998 to play football for four years and earn a degree in marketing. After this season he will have accomplished both of those feats, by his hard work and the support of his family.

Schell grew up in Covington, GA playing sports most his life. His father, Ricky, got his son involved in football at a young age.

"My dad took me to the recreation department when I was nine and that is how I got started. I was a tight end the first two years. I did not enjoy football as much as baseball, so I just played baseball most of my youth," said Schell.

In the eighth grade he tried out for his middle school football team. He started playing quarterback and fell in love with the position and the game. Schell attended Eastside High School in Georgia. It was a brand new school and his class was the first to graduate from the school. During his junior year of high school, the football team played its first varsity schedule. "It was a struggle not having any seniors on the team my junior year, but my senior year we returned 22 players and had a 9-6 season."

In high school, he played both football and baseball. "I had to choose one my senior year, I was probably better at baseball and had a more realistic future with the sport, but I loved football. After talking with my parents, we decided I should work hard at football and see where I could go," recalled Schell. His hard work paid off, as Clemson, Georgia, Georgia Tech, N.C. State, Marshall, Georgia State and Appalachian State, recruited him his senior year of high school.

Upon arriving to Clemson, he began his college career with the desire to excel in the classroom and on the football team. He was been awarded multiple times for his endeavors in the classroom. Schell has been a member of the ACC Academic Honor Roll each of his three years at Clemson, honored as one of Clemson's top scholar-athletes at the Peach Bowl Awards luncheon in 1999, and won the Vickery Hall Award for the top grade point average for a sophomore football player.

"Academics are first, I will always have my degree. Athletics, unfortunately, have to end some day," he said. Schell plans to pursue a career in law and has begun the application process to the University of South Carolina's Law School. It will be strange feeling for a Clemson quarterback living in Columbia for three years, but he is sure he will meet some great Tiger fans. "I hope to make it up back to Clemson every weekend and watch the Tigers play in Death Valley."

Though Schell has only seen action in five games in his career, he is one of the teams capable leaders. In the past two spring games, he has completed 18 of 32 passes for a combined 330 yards.

A variety of coaches have helped Schell become the student-athlete he is today. Former Head Coach Tommy West and Steve Ensminger recruited him out of high school. He was very close to Coach Ensminger, who was the offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach.

"It was tough seeing the coaches that recruited you step-down," Schell said. But he feels blessed to have the experience of adjusting to different coaching staffs and their styles. He and assistant coach Mike O'Cain, a former Clemson quarterback himself, have an excellent relationship. "Coach O'Cain has many qualities that make him a good coach. He encourages, compliments and corrects."

The back-up quarterback is an important position on every football team. He is required to know what is happening during the game and his playing time is never guaranteed. Matt Schell feels that his role on the Clemson football team is more than that. He tries to be, "a great leader to the younger guys on the team by encouraging them and helping them out."

He has a close relationship with the other quarterbacks on the team. He has played with two of Clemson's greatest quarterbacks, Brandon Streeter and Heisman Trophy candidate Woodrow Dantzler. "I like the support role that I have grown into on the team. I play with some great football players and I enjoy supporting them."

Schell has earned the respect of the other players on the team. They have seen in practice and in spring scrimmages that Schell knows the game of football. If there is an injury to Dantzler or to second-string quarterback Willie Simmons, the squad has confidence in Schell's abilities. Just look at his performance in the last two spring games where he has completed 18 of 32 passes for 330 yards. His spring game stats have been the most impressive on the team the last two years.

His reputation as a leader is also shown in his selection to LIFE Line, Clemson's football leadership organization. "It was a great honor to be picked as a leader of the football team. LIFE line is full of great people, not just great athletes," he said. The professional manner, in which the meetings are held, will help guide Schell in his future business endeavors.

Schell's leadership skills also can be traced to the leadership of his parents, Ricky and Julianne Schell. His parents have not missed a Clemson game in four years. Schell has always looked up to his father. "He gave me the dream of playing football and he has been there cheering me on since I was young."

His mother, Julianne, is also a strong positive force in his life. He is amazed by her ability to provide for his sisters and him without complaining. Schell adds, "I do not think that I have ever heard my mother complain about anything, she would do anything for my sisters or for me."

After graduation, Schell hopes that he will be able to remember all the good times he has enjoyed here at Clemson. Playing football here has taught him a lot of things about himself and what he wants for the future.

"I wish everyone could experience Clemson," Schell said. "There is something in these hills, and if you are a Tiger you know what I am talking about. I have learned the value of hard work, how to set goals and how to reach them. Most importantly, I have met many, many great people, and I will take their friendships with me wherever God leads me."

Marsha Byers is a senior from Pickens, SC and works in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

1981 Revisited

By Jeff Rhodes

Each home program throughout the remainder of the 2001 season, we will take Clemson fans back 20 years to review the greatest season in school history. The Tigers' drive to the 1981 National Championship was a season few Clemson fans over the age of 30 will ever forget. This week, we will reflect on the beginning of the season's stretch run, as the Tigers finish "running the table" against Atlantic Coast Conference foes on Tobacco Road.

—Editor

After a 38-10 victory over Duke on Oct. 17 in Durham, NC, Clemson rose to a heady fourth-place ranking in the weekly Associated Press poll, which was the team's highest ranking ever. With a sparkling 6-0 record, the excitement level was beginning to rise to a fever pitch.

It was a gray, chilly day as the Tigers faced N.C. State the following Saturday in Death Valley. Things started badly as the State's Larmount Lawson ran across the Clemson goal line on the Wolfpack's second drive. It was the first rushing touchdown the Tigers had given up all season. However, that proved to be a wake up call – N.C. State went from the third play of the second quarter until 7:57 left in the game without getting another first down. Clemson's defense featured eight future NFL players and they could be a dominating group.

Jeff Bryant, the then-huge (average football player dimensions have changed a lot since then, but 6-5 and 260 pounds was a big guy in 1981) senior defensive end was a big key, as the Atlanta native had a stellar day, recording eight first hits, four assists, and four tackles for loss. Bryant, earned a second straight ACC Defensive Player of the Week award for his efforts.

After the touchdown, the Tigers came back with a 39-yard field goal by Donald Igweuike (a name that few people who worked in the sports information office will ever forget either how to spell or pronounce, as nearly every out-of-town sports writer who called the office would invariably utter some variation of "what did you say?" when the name of the freshman placekicker from Nigeria came up) and a one-yard touchdown run by Cliff Austin. A fourth quarter, 15-yard touchdown rumble by full-back Jeff McCall provided the final 17-7 margin.

The mood in the Tiger camp made a subtle shift after the N.C. State game. Instead of the feeling of "Wow, we're still undefeated," prevalent through the first eight weeks of the season (the Tigers had an open date on Sept. 26, and even without playing, had risen four places in the AP poll), the sentiment became, "You know, we might just be a pretty darn good team."

During practice the week before the Oct. 31 contest with Wake Forest, the Tiger coaching staff was very concerned about stopping Wake Forest's potent passing attack. As it turned out, it really didn't have much to worry about.

It was only appropriate this game was played on Halloween – the game quickly became a nightmare for the Demon Deacons. The Tigers literally could not be stopped. The offense was 12-for-12 on third down conversions, racking up 536 yards rushing and 756 yards of total offense while scoring a scoreboard-frying 82 points. All are still Clemson single game records in the modern era.

In the days before the Internet, radio networks from other schools would call the press box for updates on other games in progress. After Homer Jordan ended his day with a 75-yard touchdown pass to Perry Tuttle to make the score 55-14, everyone stopped reporting the score from Death Valley – they all thought they were the victim of a practical joke.

Things officially got strange when Craig Crawford scored on a 72-yard run. The freshman was so far down on the depth chart that when he scored, the press box thought second team linebacker Otis Lindsay had been put in on offense. The Tigers dressed everybody on the team for this game and Crawford was actually wearing a duplicate number. The Demon Deacon mascot then performed the 82 pushups to spell the nearly exhausted Tiger mascot. The Deacon later got in trouble for this, but Clemson fans thought he was just being a good sport.

Then came the game – the showdown with North Carolina for conference supremacy. The week before the game, the sports information office hosted Sports Illustrated writer Alexander Wolfe (the first time an SI writer had covered the Tigers) and actually had to staff the Danny Ford Appreciation pep rally in Clemson's amphitheater, an event that was coordinated by future CBS This Morning host Jane Robelot, who coordinated the Pep Rallies for Central Spirit that year, her senior year at Clemson.

One of Jane's most memorable days as a Clemson student took place the Wednesday prior to the game when she went to Frank Howard's office and asked him to call Bear Bryant to invite him to the Pep Rally. Howard made the call, but Bryant, still coaching Alabama at the time, declined.

Kenan Stadium in Chapel Hill, NC, is a beautiful place to play football, and the bright, sunny day made it the perfect setting for the ACC's first-ever meeting of top-10 teams, with the second-ranked Tigers taking on the eighth-ranked Tar Heels. Bowl scouts, with their multi-hued sports coats, were in the press box in force and there were so many writers covering the game that classroom desks were used to handle the overflow.

The game lived up to the hype and the regional TV audience (this was only the second time the Tigers had been on the tube that season, as this was in the prehistoric, TV days when only ABC televised games) saw quite a battle.

After a scoreless first quarter, North Carolina took a 3-0 lead, but the Tigers came roaring back, driving 81 yards in 14 plays, with Jeff McCall going the final seven yards for the score. A blocked punt through the end zone gave UNC a safety, and the Tigers led 7-5 at the break.

The Tigers added to their margin seven minutes into the second half with a 39-yard Igweuike field goal. North Carolina marched back, but the Clemson defense held and the Tar Heels added a field goal to make the score 10-8 in favor of the Tigers in the fourth period. Late in the game, Carolina had been pinned deep in their end of the field after a booming 40-yard punt by Clemson freshman Dale "Thunderfoot" Hatcher. But the Tar Heels dug themselves out of the hole and were marching down the field.

What happen next was quite possibly the biggest play of the season. North Carolina quarterback Scott Stankavage flipped a screen pass to fullback Allan Burrus in the right flat at the Carolina 40. Burrus bobbled the ball and it fell to ground.

On the Clemson sideline, time seemed to stop. It was like a movie playing out in slow motion. Players and coaches were yelling "Geeeeettthhhheeee baaaaallllll" as they realized it was a fumble, and "Boogie," as Bryant was nicknamed, came from across the field and alertly fell on the pigskin. If you watch the TV replay, it seemed like a bang-bang play. On the field, though, it took a couple of days. The referee pointed toward Clemson's end zone and the several thousand people dressed in orange went berserk. Not surprisingly, Bryant was again ACC Defensive Player of the Week.

The mood in the Tiger camp then changed again. Instead of "You know, we might just be a pretty darn good team," the feeling became "This must be destiny. It really is our year."

Jeff Rhodes was a student assistant in the Clemson sports information office during the historic 1981 season and 20 years later still returns to every Clemson home game to work on the stat crew.

McCall led all rushers with 84 yards and scored Clemson's only touchdown in the win over North Carolina in 1981. The contest marked the first meeting of top 10 ACC teams.

Clemson Bowl History

Clemson celebrated a national championship after defeating Nebraska in the 1982 Orange Bowl.

Sterling Smith's tackle for a safety gave Clemson a 15-14 win over Miami in the 1951 Orange Bowl.

Tracy Johnson scored three touchdowns in Clemson's 35-10 win over Penn State in the 1988 Citrus Bowl.

Strength Training

Clemson fans look forward to seeing tough, hard-nosed football when they come to Death Valley or travel to other schools to watch their Tigers in action. But some of the Tigers' most intense competition and action doesn't take place on autumn Saturday's and it doesn't take place on a field. Take a peek into the Clemson Strength Training Room at almost any time of day, almost any day of the week, at any time of the year, and you will see the Tigers building the foundation for their pursuit of a championship.

Perhaps the most impressive characteristic of the facility is its size. Several years ago, it was enlarged to an astounding 11,000 square feet, making it one of the largest in the nation. In 1998, it was expanded to 14,000 square feet. The facility boasts two full lines of Nautilus machines and over 12 tons of weights. The large number of machines and free weights allows the weight room to be used by athletes from several other sports at the same time, without anyone having to wait in line at a particular station.

Within the last two years the dumbbell area and leg development areas were expanded as well as the nutrition and hydration area known as the Power Station. The Power Station features the energy and recovery drink to aid each athlete's recovery from intense training.

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place in the facility. When an athlete enters the etched glass doors, he is greeted by plush, wall-to-wall carpeting, walls lined with mirrors, ceiling fans, and music from a 26-speaker sound system - a worthy backdrop for well over $500,000 worth of state-of-the-art equipment.

Color television monitors are also positioned throughout the facility. These monitors are used for training and instruction, as Tiger strength coaches film the athletes and work with them on form correction.

The large staff of four full-time strength coaches, four graduate assistants, numerous student assistants, and volunteers ensures that each football player receives proper instruction on the fundamentals of strength and speed development. Training programs at Clemson are position specific and designed to meet the needs and demands of each athlete. Also, each position is appointed a full-time strength coach that serves as a personal trainer for that particular athlete throughout his career.

Hard core training and competition in the weight room and the annual Ironman Classic will help each athlete reach optimal levels in strength and speed development. The Tiger Strength Training and Nutrition Program help each athlete to become a complete player.

Vickery Hall

Vickery Hall

all, 215 student-athletes had a 3.0 GPA or better, nearly 50 percent of the 441 student-athletes in the 19 varsity programs at Clemson.

A total of seven teams posted GPAs over 3.0 in the spring semester of 2001, the most in school history for a single semester. Six programs posted all-time highs for semester GPA, including the football, men's soccer, women's soccer, men's swimming, women's swimming and rowing teams.

The Clemson football team had a 2.58 team GPA in the spring, significantly ahead of the previous high of 2.49 set in the spring semester of 2000. Tommy Bowden has been the head coach at Clemson for five semesters and his team has had five of the top six semesters on record. Thirty-seven Clemson football players made the academic honor roll, the high total among Clemson teams for the semester.

The Academic Counselors perform a variety of duties to track academic progress. These duties include providing assistance in registration and priority scheduling, contacting faculty, personally checking classes, recording information, counseling sessions with student-athletes, providing diagnostic testing, and directing career aspirations.

One of the most prestigious programs that has received recognition essential to the growth of Vickery

Hall is the tutorial program.

Of the 160 programs certified by CRLA, the Clemson Student-Athlete Enrichment Program was one of the first three student-athlete programs in the country to be granted a Level 1 certification from the College of Reading and Learning Association, International Tutor Certification Program. The program was also honored with the National Champs Skills Excellence Award in 1999, one of six schools from across the country to be honored.

Having tutor certification allows student-athletes to be provided the highest quality of academic assistance possible. Approximately 80 tutors are hired to provide academic support in the many subject areas offered.

Many post-graduate scholarships and internships are also available to student-athletes continuing their education through postgraduate studies. Our student-athletes are provided timely information regarding these opportunities and the resources necessary to assist in the application process for either scholarships or internships.

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided its student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success (C.A.T.S.) not only in the athletic arena but in the academic, personal growth, career, and service arenas as well. As an original member of the NCAA Life Skills/CHAMPS Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes in the years during college and after graduation.

C.A.T.S. Coaching Athletes To Success

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 19 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletics Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and was the first support facility in the country built solely for the all-around education of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes.

The mission of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is to monitor, guide, and encourage student-athletes to fulfill their long-term goals, and to achieve their academic and career potential.

Vickery Hall focuses on five primary areas to meet the student-athlete's needs.

ACADEMIC COMMITMENT

The academic commitment aspect of Clemson's Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation.

Clemson's student-athletes had a 2.80 GPA for the spring semester in 2001, the highest overall GPA on record. The overall student body had a 2.82, and the 0.02 margin between the student-athletes and the overall student population was the smallest differential on record. A record 28 student-athletes were named to the President's List (a perfect 4.0) and a record 97 student-athletes made the dean's list for the spring semester of 2001. Over-

The Dick Hendley Computer Lab is one of the areas of Vickery Hall that make it one of the top facilities of its kind, nationally.

Vickery Hall

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to provide the student-athletes at Clemson with one of the largest computer labs in the country. Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Microcomputer Laboratory. The lab is open seven days a week, for 16 hours on Monday through Thursday, and a limited time on Saturday and Sunday. During exam periods the lab hours are extended.

The lab staff has a full-time computer manager, and also graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course, as well as the many management, engineering, and business courses that deal with personal computers.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is committed to providing state-of-the-art computing facilities. New computers have recently been purchased bringing the lab to a state of the art facility. More than 50 computers are available for student-athletes.

All computers are fully connected to the internet allowing for access of computers throughout the world for research and communication.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

One of the most important programs that helps student-athletes reach their full potential and engage successfully in this college experience is the Personal Growth and Development Program.

One of the key components of this program is the first-semester freshman transition class designed to assist the student-athlete in making a successful transition into his/her university and athletic life. All first-semester freshmen attend a semester-long series of workshops targeting the transitional issues of time management, organizational strategies, health and wellness issues, athletic issues, diversity issues, career orientation, and service training. Throughout the academic year, all student-athletes are required to attend four large-group programs, which focus on pertinent social, health, and athletic issues.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

The Career Assistance Program provides student-athletes an opportunity to fulfill career aspirations by participating in various career seminars offered by the staff at Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide student-athletes with job-searching skills and strategies, internships, practical experience, and summer employment. These programs are designed to address specific career opportunities and acquire information about the student-athletes for each year.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center, and the Athletic Department, the staff is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athletes with job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Career Assistance Program is coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and focuses on resume writing and interview techniques.

SERVICE COMMITMENT

Providing community and outreach service to student-athletes and the surrounding community by engaging the student-athletes in hands-on interactive programs is an important aspect of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs. The staff of SAEP coordinates various activities each year to engage student-athletes in community outreach projects along with academic programs.

Another aspect of the service commitment is that of community service. The purpose of community service is to allow the student-athletes to become involved with the happenings of the community while giving back at the same time. Each year every team is required to perform at least two community outreach projects. Recently implemented was a new community service program entitled Success Away From the Game. The purpose of this program is to combine athletes of different sports in community outreach programs. By doing this, each outreach program participates, thus creating a diverse group of athletes with new and different ideas. At the end of each year, six student-athletes who have demonstrated outstanding commitment and contributions to the community are recognized as the Top 6 by the ACC.

LIFELine, another aspect of community service, consists of chosen football players who work together in specific community outreach projects. LIFELine has approximately 20 members along with a president, vice president and secretary. Once a month, these young men meet to discuss future projects. To date, they have sponsored Hi-Five Day, planted a garden at Helping Hands Children Shelter, and held reading programs at elementary schools. These young men have vital roles in both the community and the athletic arena.

To assist our student-athletes in becoming effective service leaders and communicators we provide service and speaking training, which anticipates the demands placed on a student-athlete when he/she might be speaking with a group of young people or also speaking with the media.

ATHLETIC COMMITMENT

Under the direction of athletic director Bobby Robinson, Clemson is undoubtedly one of the elite programs of Division I athletics.

With a generous funding base from Clemson's booster organization, IPTAY, and the forward-thinking of our athletic administration, the Clemson Tigers will continue to be a dominating athletic force, not only in the ACC, but nationally as well.

Clemson was commended for its graduation rate in football by the American Football Coaches Association in 1999 and 2000. Three members of the 2000 team who celebrated graduation in May of 2001 were Terry Bryant, Rod Gardner and Jason Holloman.

CLEMSON COMEBACKS

Last year Clemson overcame a 17-point deficit to defeat North Carolina in Chapel Hill. The victory allowed Clemson to run its record to 8-0. Clemson has overcome a 10-point or larger deficit to gain a victory or tie 18 times in its history. It is interesting to note that five of the top six have taken place on the road. The Clemson record for points overcome for victory is 28, set at Virginia in 1992. It is also the ACC record involving two conference schools. Maryland holds the record for a non-conference game with a 31-point comeback victory at Miami (FL) in 1984.

Sports Year In Review

The men's basketball team defeated #1 ranked North Carolina in February, ending the nation's longest win streak at 18 games. It marked the second time in school history that Clemson had upset the nation's top-ranked team.

- The Clemson sports program had 11 teams rank in the final top 25, the university's highest number of top 25 teams since the 1991-92 academic year when a record 13 teams finished in the top 25. Overall, it tied for the third highest number of top 25 finishes in Clemson history.

- Clemson had 31 All-Americans in 2000-01, its second highest single year total on record. The 39 achieved in 1998-99 is the only figure that is higher for one year.

- The program could boast of 70 All-ACC selections, the highest total since 1989-90 when a record 82 athletes made All-ACC. The total reached in 2000-01 is the second highest total in school history.

- Clemson upset the nation's top ranked team in two different sports during the 2000-01 academic year. The Lady Tiger soccer team defeated a #1 ranked and eventual national champion North Carolina team by a 2-1 score in October at Clemson. The Clemson men's basketball team upset a #1 ranked North Carolina team that had won 18 straight games in February. It was just the third academic year in Clemson history that the school had wins over top ranked teams in two different sports.

- Clemson had another strong performance in spring sports as four teams ranked in the top 25 in the nation in their respective final polls. The golf team finished second to tie for its highest finish ever, while the women's track team was seventh, its highest outdoor track ranking. The baseball team advanced to the Super Regionals and ranked 13th in the final poll. The rowing team, in just its third year of existence, ranked 21st in the final poll.

- Clemson had at least two All-ACC performers on 14 of its 19 teams, while nine different teams had at least two All-Americans.

- Twelve of Clemson's 19 teams participated in post-season play and six different teams that compete in dual match or game competition upset at least one top 25 team.

- Clemson was one of the dominant programs in the nation when it came to soccer. Both programs ranked in the top 10 in the nation, one of just three programs nationally to make that claim. The men advanced to the Sweet 16, while the women advanced to the Elite Eight. Both teams played host to the NCAA Tournament.

- Clemson had the ACC Performer of the Year in three of the four league track meets during 2000-01. Cyndonie Mothersill was the ACC Track Performer of the year at the ACC outdoor meet, while Jamine Moton was the MVP of the indoor meet. Jacey Harper was the MVP of the Indoor track meet on the men's side.

- Three coaches in three different sports were named ACC Coach of the Year in 2000-01. The list included Susie Lueck (rowing), Bob Pollock (Indoor track) and Ray Leone (women's soccer).

IPTAY ENDOWMENT PROGRAM

IPTAY is widely regarded nationally as the father of Athletic Fundraising. It all started in 1934 and from a private meeting of a small group of Clemson supporters has sprung into an organization that raised a record $10 million last year. The organization plays a major role in ensuring that all 19 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships offered by the NCAA.

The organization also has helped finance facilities that contribute to the well-being of student-athletes on and off the field. Vickery Hall is a 27,000 square foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. It is a major reason Clemson student-athletes have had their highest cumulative GPA on record for five consecutive semesters.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson, currently helping more than 40 students at Clemson.

IPTAY Executive Director George Bennett has continued to keep Clemson among the best in the nation in terms of fund-raising by the establishment of the IPTAY Endowment Program. In April of 1994, he kicked off the beginning of the endowment of positions program at the 85th birthday celebration for former Clemson Coach Frank Howard. The endowments are secure with a $100,000 donation paid over a five-year period.

"This is a chance to broaden the horizons of IPTAY," said Bennett. "It gives an individual or a group of people an opportunity to endow a position that meant something during their college days, or to honor a person at a position. The money being endowed is going to secure our future as the interest is used to carry on our program forever.

The first endowment was for the head football coach position to honor the legendary Frank Howard. Howard coached football at Clemson 39 years, 30 as the head coach. During his tenure the Tigers won 165 games, 100 of which were against conference foes. "Former players and friends of Coach Howard made donations over the cost of attending the celebration program and that was enough for the endowment. Their gifts were a way of permanently thanking Coach Howard for all that he did for Clemson.

"Following Coach Howard's birthday party we began to look for an individual to help us support and promote the program and Bill Hudson's name came up. He was an outstanding player at Clemson who has been equally successful in the business world. We went to him and explained the program and its goals and that we were looking for his leadership to help get the program going, and he accepted."

Hudson, a 1956 graduate, was a three-year letter winner at tackle who played professionally for the Montreal Alouettes, the San Diego Chargers, and the Boston Patriots. He earned Pro Bowl honors in 1962. Mr. Hudson sees this program growing into a large part of Clemson's athletic funding. "When other people see information on the endowment program and learn what it is about this program will grow. Success builds on success. People who are looking to honor a friend or family member now have a great means to do that."

Besides the Hudson's family endowment four other football endowments were made and one managers position in the first year. Now there are more than 90 positions endowed. The goal of the program is to get every position endowed. "From the free safety to the number-three player in women's tennis, we hope to have every position endowed," said Bennett.

"We will likely use the Avenue of Champions as a physical place to honor these people further for the positions they have endowed. That will have plenty of space, so we will be working to have as many endowments across all of our sports.

"The personal satisfaction that they helped Clemson University, specifically the Athletic department, and that they are securing its future are the main reasons for becoming involved."

And with more involvement Clemson will have a very secure future for generations to come.

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties supplies Tiger fans with a full day of broadcasts each Clemson football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three shows, "Countdown to Kickoff," "Game Day Broadcast," and the "Football Final."

A Clemson tradition since the mid-seventies, Countdown to Kickoff is a 90-minute entertainment and interactive program produced live from the lawn at Littlejohn Coliseum at the corner closest to Death Valley. The show begins two hours prior to kickoff. Popular Greenville entertainers Love & Hudson, play host to the show that is attended by thousands of Clemson fans. Interviews, games, display items and pre-game excitement are all part of the show that has become a part of the game-day excitement at Death Valley.

The Game Day Broadcast features long-time voice of the Tigers Jim Phillips. A legendary figure in Clemson sports, Phillips is in his 34th year providing play-by-play for Clemson sports. A high percentage of Clemson fans have never heard anyone else broadcast a Clemson football game. He is one of the most respected broadcasters in the country.

Joining Phillips on the broadcast are former Clemson Hall of Fame quarterbacks Mike Eppley and Rodney Williams. Eppley was an All-ACC quarterback for the Tigers between 1980-84, while Williams led the Tigers to a record 32 victories, including bowl wins over Stanford, Penn State and Oklahoma, as a starting signal caller between 1985-88.

The Game Day broadcast begins 30 minutes prior to each game. Coach Tommy Bowden's pre-game thoughts are heard during the opening segment as well as scene setters from around the ACC and the nation. Eppley, Williams and Phillips, who have followed Clemson football for a combined 70 years also provide their pre-game analysis.

After the game, noted upstate television sports personality Pete Yanity will play host to the Football Final. Fans can hear coach Bowden as well as selected players comment on that day's game. Reports also will be presented from important games from around the ACC and the nation.

In addition to the Saturday broadcasts, fans can also follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls, a one hour program with Coach Bowden and Jim Phillips each Thursday evening. The show runs from August 30 to November 19.

CLEMSON

ROARING INTO THE FUTURE

A major goal on Clemson's road to becoming a top-20 public university has been successful completion of The Clemson Commitment capital campaign.

The numbers are in! The Clemson Commitment has blown away its goal of $260 million and recorded a huge victory for Clemson's academic reputation. A whopping 26.6 percent of our alumni "roared for Clemson" by showing their support.

The campaign has positioned Clemson to become a top-20 public university by scoring these wins!

For students — Our bigger, better scholarship program features the new Clemson National Scholars, making us competitive for the top students in the nation.

For teaching — New endowed chairs and a boost in support for academic programs are attracting and retaining more national-caliber faculty.

For research — The development and licensing of donated patents and intellectual properties valued at more than $50 million are providing unique research opportunities for graduate students.

For outreach — Campaign gifts made possible initiatives like Call Me MISTER, the Clemson-led nationally acclaimed program to put more African American male teachers in elementary schools.

For athletics — Thanks to Tiger Pride, we're making giant strides in improving athletic facilities.

For the future — In the tradition of Thomas Green Clemson, donors have made provisions for the University in their wills, for an increase of $76.5 million to the University's deferred gifts inventory.

Tiger Band

By Bryant Stone

The Clemson Tigers' rigorous ACC schedule continues today in Death Valley as the team squares off against the Virginia Cavaliers. By defeating the Cavaliers 31-10 in Charlottesville, VA last year, the Tigers took a 5-4 lead in the season series between the two schools since 1991, when the two teams tied 20-20 in Clemson. The rivalry between these schools that has developed in recent years continues today. While the teams battle on the field, the Tiger Band will be "Shakin the Southland" from both the field and the stands.

The Tiger Band will begin its traditional pre-game show with the "Orange Bowl March," followed by "Tiger Rag" as the band forms the Script Tigers. After the "i" is dotted, the pre-game show then continues with "Washington Post," "God Bless America," and the "Star Spangled Banner." Concluding the traditional festivities, the band will play the Clemson University alma mater, followed by "Tiger Rag" once more as the Tiger players storm down the hill in what many consider "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football."

Dotting the "i" today is Fred Faircloth, president of Clemson University's Alumni Association. Faircloth is a 1972 graduate of Clemson with a degree in political science, and he is currently the general manager of the Rock Hill Coca-Cola Bottling Co. He and his wife Phyllis have twins, Freddy, a 2000 Clemson graduate, and Virginia. They live in Rock Hill, SC.

Today's theme for the halftime show today is "Beatlemania!" in honor of one of the greatest pop bands of all time, The Beatles. The Tiger Band will present an encore presentation featuring several of The Beatles' number-one hits, including "She Loves You," "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band," "Day Tripper," "Ticket Ride," "I Want to Hold Your Hand," "Can't Buy Me Love," and "Hey Jude."

The main focus of the Tiger Band article today is the drum majors. The drum majors are some of the most important members of the band, and their duties contain a variety of responsibilities. Drum majors act as field conductors during performances and field assistants to the director during rehearsals. Other duties include taking attendance, correcting individual's errors and style problems and assisting with the teaching of marching drills to the band.

Tiger Band Drum Majors: Lindsey Templeton, Becky Graham, Rebecca Poe and Heather Lott

Currently the Tiger Band has four drum majors. The eldest of the drum majors is Becky Graham, who is in her third year as a drum major and her fourth year as a Tiger Band member. She is a native of Camden, SC and a graduate of Camden HS. Graham is a senior majoring in nursing.

The Tiger Band's other three drum majors are all in their first year of duties. Heather Lott is in her third year as a Tiger Band member. She is a native of Greenville, SC and a graduate of Wade Hampton HS. Lott is a junior majoring in secondary education and English.

Rebecca Poe is in her second year as a member of the Tiger Band, and she is a native of Summerville, SC. A graduate of Summerville HS, Rebecca is a sophomore majoring in speech and communication studies.

Lindsey Templeton is also in her second year as a Tiger Band member and she is a native of York, SC. Lindsey is a graduate of York Comprehensive HS, and she is a sophomore majoring in mathematics teaching. Look for these drum majors to lead the band's performances all day long.

As a reminder, the Tiger Band's annual Pass-In-Review concert will be on Thursday, Nov. 15 at 8:00 PM in the Brooks Theatre.

The Tiger Band's new CD titled Shakin' the Southland is available at the Tiger Band Office for $15.00. To order by mail, send a check payable to CUTBA for $17.00 ($15.00 + $2.00 shipping in handling) to:

Whitey Jordan

By Mandie Parrish

Some people have that shock of white-blond hair as a kid that you just can't miss it's so startling. And that hair was what you didn't miss, when as a kid, Whitey Jordan would scamper to grab the baseball that would pop over the stadium fence near his home in Florence, SC.

Someone would always wonder "Who got that ball?" The general manager of the team would always say, "It's that white-haired kid again." The nickname 'Whitey' stuck and no one but his Mom calls him by his real name anymore.

Sports have been in Whitey Jordan's blood ever since then. He played football at Clemson and was a three-year letterwinner under Head Coach Frank Howard. In the 1957 season, he nabbed 12 receptions for 369 yards, and that 30.8 yards per catch figure stood as a single-season record for 30 years. He also played baseball for the Tigers before coach Bill Wilhelm began his legendary career.

After graduating, Jordan decided to go into coaching and coached at Clemson for 14 seasons, including 12 under Howard. He was among the youngest offensive coordinators in the country in the 1960s. He then left and made several stops along the way before returning to his alma mater. During those college years, his coaching résumé included the programs at Southern Mississippi, SMU, Wake Forest, Florida, North Carolina and then back to Clemson in 1993.

Everywhere he went he was a part of a winning program. At the college level, he coached in 11 bowl games at five different schools.

Looking at those schools, one might wonder how he coached among so many Atlantic Coast Conference teams and made it through. "Well," he said, "You have to remember this...you'd rather beat your friends than your enemies!"

"You see your friends everyday and you see your enemies once a year... and you just hate for them to think they're better than you are. When I was at Wake (Forest) and (North) Carolina, I wanted to beat Clemson worse than anybody. But when I was back here, I couldn't wait to beat them!"

Jordan has coached some great football players in the NFL when they were in college. While at SMU, he coached Eric Dickerson. At Florida, he coached Emmitt Smith. Both are among the top-five career rushing leaders in NFL history.

"These guys had an incredible work ethic," Jordan said. "They just played hard all the time. Emmitt was a grown man from the first time I saw him."

Jordan's specialty is obviously as an offensive coordinator. "My basic philosophy is to be strong running the football and to complement the defense with the offense," he said. "It's a team game and our offense has to mesh with our defense. We have got to be a team and complement each other. Basically I tell them I'm coming to work everyday, will give you a day's work and be the best coach I can be. You come to work everyday and give me the same in return, and we'll get better a little each day."

Jordan's philosophy paid off; his teams were all very successful. The last losing season he had was in 1976 at Southern Mississippi. This winning season streak includes two years at Wake Forest with Bill Dooley in the 1980s. It is the only occurrence of back-to-back winning seasons for that program in the last 28 years.

At North Carolina, Jordan's duties were extended to be Mack Brown's assistant head coach. North Carolina had consecutive 1-10 seasons before Jordan arrived, then won six, seven and nine games with Jordan on the staff. He then returned to Clemson where he had another winning season the first year. He was the offensive coordinator of Clemson's 9-3 team in 1993, the last Tiger team to finish in the top 25 prior to Tommy Bowden's 2000 team.

You will notice that Jordan speaks in the present when he talks about his offensive philosophy. That is because he is still coaching. After serving the Tiger program as an administrator under Tommy West, Jordan's coaching journey was rekindled in NFL Europe. He got a call from his old coaching buddy Gayland Hall, who he had served under at Florida. His team, the Rhein Fire, won the World Bowl in his first year.

"I've just been lucky," Jordan, now

Jordan celebrates a World Bowl Championship with the Rhein Fire. At his left is former Tiger Wardell Rouse.

65, said. "I've had good people and guys that would work hard. I've enjoyed everyday I've been out on the football field. I love to go out there everyday and see the players improve from what you're teaching them. I love going to work Sunday night and making a plan and then seeing it come true the next game Saturday."

This past winter he was back on the sidelines coaching in the now-defunct XFL, another winning season with the Orlando franchise. "Aside from the crazy promotions they did surrounding the event, the games were good and the players played hard. They looked at it as a way to get to the NFL. Everything we did as far as travel and the way we were treated was first class."

He has spent the spring and summer in Clemson working on his golf game.

And what's next in his schedule? He just might go back to Europe to work with Hall again. "I will probably coach as long as my health is good."

"I've been in this business for 44 years and I still get excited about every time we play. I enjoy every day I go to the office. I've never had a job in 44 years. But right now I'm enjoying playing some golf too. Retirement is going well."

Yeah, if you could call all that coaching "retirement."

Mandie Parrish is a graduate student from Charlotte, NC and works in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Jordan coached at the college level from 1960-93, including two stops at Clemson under Frank Howard and Ken Hatfield.

Clemson Rowing

By Samantha Carruth

"The will to win means nothing without the will to prepare," is a motto that is not only heard in the boathouse on Lake Hartwell, home of Clemson rowing, but the saying is embedded in the heart and soul of each member of the Clemson Tiger rowing team. The desire to win and dedication at practice paid off for the Tigers during the 2001 season. In its third year, the Clemson rowing program continued to excel not only on the water, but academically as well.

On the water, the Tigers received their first national ranking. Clemson was ranked 15th on April 11, 2001, and finished the season ranked 21st. Not only did the Clemson rowing team earn its first national ranking, but received conference, regional and national accolades as well. Senior Lucy Doolittle was named the Tigers' first rowing All-American, earning first-team honors. The Tigers' first varsity 8+ was named ACC's crew of the year, while the varsity 4+ claimed the ACC title.

Clemson placed four rowers, Doolittle, Aimee Fox, Gail Cadorniga and Lauren Henne, on the All-South Region team. Head coach Susie Lueck, who is entering her fourth season in Tigertown, was named the South Region and ACC Coach of the Year. She credits the success of the program to the hard work and pride each team member takes in Clemson rowing.

"The unity on the team is extremely strong and they each realize that everyone has a place on the team," Lueck said. The team has a desire to win, along with strong ethics that they display at each practice."

The hard work ethic on the water is carried over into the classroom. Academically, the 2000-01 team posted an all-time best 3.30 GPA with 33 rowers named to the Clemson Honor Roll. "Our student athletes and coaches do a wonderful job of making academics a high priority," said Bill D'Andrea, Director of Student-Athlete Enrichment. "The athletes compete in disciplined sports and the discipline instilled by coaches carries over to the classroom."

This year's senior class, who finished the spring season in 1999 as an undefeated novice team, will help Lueck guide the 2001 team through the season with the goal of being competitive nationally. With the loss of only five seniors from a 43-person roster, Lueck is excited about the possibilities. "We have a strong senior class this year with a lot of race experience. They have many leadership qualities and they have seen the program come full circle," said Lueck.

The Clemson rowing team is primarily comprised of student-athletes who competed in other sports in high schools. With tryouts each fall, Lueck along with assistants Kelly Lynch and Laura Slice, seeks student-athletes who are committed to learning the sport of rowing and demonstrate a solid work ethic, both of which are characteristics of a Clemson Tiger rower. Lueck truly believes that with hard work and dedication every Clemson rower has the potential to be an All-American. "Lucy Doolittle, our first All-American, had no background in athletics. It is exciting to see her find success, and there is a lot of potential for other members of the team to accomplish the same thing."

The Tigers will begin their non-traditional fall season Sept. 29 at the Carolina Classic in Durham, NC, where they will gain multiple race experience by racing in pairs, doubles, fours and eights. "You can practice for a race, but until you participate in a race you don't gain the experiences to draw from. So we are looking to get multiple races in a day in a competitive environment," said Lueck.

Clemson will travel to Augusta, GA, on Oct. 13 for the Head of the South regatta, where the novice rowers will have their first race opportunity.

On the weekend of Oct. 20-21, the Tigers will take the varsity 8+ to the prestigious Head of Charles in Boston, MA, where Clemson will race in the women's championship 8+. This event will allow Clemson to face collegiate and national team crews. "We will not only be racing against the top Division I schools, but we will compete against other national caliber teams," said Lueck. "We are looking to have a good showing against top-ranked programs."

Tiger supporters will have a chance to see this year's team compete when Clemson returns to Lake Hartwell for parent's weekend on Saturday, Oct. 27. The Tigers will face Tennessee in this year's Head of Lake Hartwell Regatta.

On Sunday, Oct. 28, Clemson will participate in its annual Class Day Regatta with the senior class attempting to defend their title against the juniors and sophomores, while the freshmen will randomly draw boats and race each other. The day will conclude with an opportunity for the parents to learn the technique of rowing. "This is always exciting because most of the parents have never seen the sport of rowing. It is always a festive weekend and a lot of fun," said Lueck.

The Tigers will travel to Gainesville, GA, on Nov. 3 for the Head of the Chattahoochee regatta. "The Hootch" features many strong Division I women's programs including Duke, North Carolina, Miami, Tennessee and Texas. Last year's regatta featured a new course, which will remain the same this year. "The course has a lot of turns, so there is a lot of strategy involved, but it breaks up the three miles and makes the race more exciting," said Lueck.

Clemson will conclude its fall season with the Rivanna Romp, held Nov. 11 in Charlottesville, VA.

The Clemson rowing team will be led by seniors Lisa Mischley and Megan McGuirt, who will serve as co-captains this season. McGuirt, a member of Clemson's Student-Athlete Advisory Board (SAAB) and a member of the NCAA women's sports committee, not only leads on the water, but is a very dedicated student-athlete who is committed to representing student-athletes at the conference and national level. Mischley, a very charismatic athlete, will be in her second year leading the team as a co-captain. "They will be a great set of co-captains because they compliment each other well," said Lueck.

As the senior class, the inaugural freshman class of 1998-99, prepares to pass down the legacy of hard work and determination to win, they look forward to leading the team to another nationally competitive year. With the will and desire to prepare along with the depth of the team, the 2001-02 Tigers will strive to not only compete with the best, but to become the best.

Samantha Carruth is from Landrum, SC and is a graduate assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

The Clemson Varsity 4+ claimed the school's first-ever ACC Championship last year, one of many firsts for the fourth-year Clemson program that also received its first national ranking in 2000-01.

Jeff Baker

By Louis Garmendia

The baseball prowess of junior third baseman Jeff Baker could be described using one of many numbers. There is 23, the number of home runs he hit last season, just shy of a school record. The number one would be his rank in home runs and RBIs in the ACC. And then there's four, which is the number of different USA Baseball National Teams that he has played on, a first for an American player.

But perhaps the most impressive number is 6,300, which is the number of dollars the power hitter cost bat maker Easton during the 2000 season. Baker dented 21 aluminum bats at $300 a bat, which Easton supplies as a part of an endorsement contract with head coach Jack Leggett. While bats get dented from time to time, the fact that Baker ruined 21 of them and that he only uses them in games is remarkable. It is no wonder he is hitting home runs on a record-breaking pace.

"I definitely enjoy hitting the long ball. It's not something I try to do but it's one of the greatest feelings I have when I play," he said. "To me, there's no greater feeling than, after the ball goes over the fence, getting to run around the bases by yourself while the pitcher hangs his head."

The 6-foot-1, 215-pounder from Woodbridge, VA, has been hurting bats and pitchers' feelings for years now. After being born in Badkissiaagen, Germany to an American Army general, he moved from state to state until winding up in Virginia. He was the state's player of the Year and a High School All-American by Baseball America. He was runner up to tennis star Andre Agassi for USOC Athlete of the month in September 1999 after being named MVP of the 1999 International Baseball Association World Championship Tournament. After being chosen in the fourth round of the Major League Baseball Draft, Baker was faced with the decision of a lucrative contract or a chance to play college baseball at Clemson.

"Coming out of high school you're a young kid and you don't really know too much. I felt like I wanted to come and get an education but also play baseball for Clemson, one of the best programs in the country," he said. "I just felt like I wasn't ready to handle pro baseball at the time. I definitely think I made the right decision."

The choice paid off immediately, as Baker started at shortstop his freshman year and led the team with 11 home runs. The 2000 season included a sweep of Mississippi State in the Super Regional and culminated into a trip to the promised land, Omaha and the College World Series.

After touring with USA Baseball this summer, Jeff Baker is back for his junior season taking aim on the school record of 53 home runs and a return trip to Omaha. Baker hit 23 homers last year, one shy of the school record, and has 34 in his first two years, the most by a Tiger.

"The Super Regional here was something else," said Baker. "So many fans came out to the game and we had great support. That was tremendous being able to celebrate on our home field. The College World Series, you can't describe it. It's one thing to watch it on TV and another thing to play in it."

Baker broke out during his sophomore campaign with a .377 batting average, 23 home runs and 73 RBIs while moving to third base. He established school marks with the most home runs after two seasons (34), most multi-homer games in a season (five) and most multi-homer games in a career (seven).

"I was hoping to progress with my statistics and getting in the weight room with Coach (John) Sisk, that was the main plus for me," said Baker, who added 15 pounds between his freshman and sophomore seasons. "My freshman year I was really skinny and fragile, but I put on a lot of good weight and that helped me a lot."

Despite some key personnel losses, the Tigers almost made a repeat trip to Omaha in 2001 before falling to eventual national champion Miami (FL) in the Coral Gables Super Regional. After a week off, it was back to the diamond for Baker, who started all but one game for the USA Baseball National Team. The squad went on a 29-game tour that began with a five-game series in Japan against that nation's national team and ended with an eight-game series against Taiwan. Baker hit .237 with two home runs in the tour that also included games against teams in Alaska, Minnesota, Ohio, New York and New Jersey. But the summer was about more than baseball and statistics for Baker.

"I really wasn't worried about my numbers because I knew I busted my tail during the season and I was a little tired during summer ball," he said. "My stats weren't as high as I would have liked them to be, but the thing I enjoyed more than playing baseball was being an ambassador for USA Baseball. We do camps before the games and get to help little kids learn about baseball. We get to help out underprivileged kids and visit them in the hospital. You get to travel around and meet people, and it's just a great experience to wear USA across your chest. USA Baseball is an awesome experience."

Baker is going to build on that experience for the upcoming season. After getting an early taste of Omaha, he is ready for seconds.

"This team is a veteran team. We have a bunch of seniors who can lead us back to the Series," he said. "I think this team has a chance to get back to Omaha and compete for something out there. We're as talented as we were my freshman year and have a lot more experience."

Although the junior is on a record-shattering home run pace, this may be Baker's last season to top the career mark of 53 set by Matthew LeCroy from 1995-97. He will once again be eligible for the MLB draft in June and he is a likely first-round pick. But nothing is set in stone quite yet.

"If things work out where there is an opportunity to play professional baseball and I think the timing is right, it would definitely be a good decision for me to start my pro career," he said. "If not, then I look forward to coming back to Clemson for my senior season."

Louis Garmendia is a graduate student from Mt. Pleasant, SC and works in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

The Last Word

By Tim Bourret

Every year for the last 12 seasons the Virginia football media guide documented the number of graduate students the Cavaliers had on their current roster. It has been an impressive list, a fact that brings pride to alumni and current university administrators. The tradition has continued this year, as the 2001 Cavaliers who will face Clemson in Death Valley today have eight active players with degrees.

This year the Cavaliers are not alone in trumpeting academic success, as Clemson has a record seven active players who have already earned their degree. It is an all-time record for a Clemson football team. We aren't padding the stats with walk-ons either. Not only are all seven on scholarship, all seven are in the Clemson starting lineup.

The families of quarterback Woodrow Dantzler (marketing), offensive guard Will Merritt (speech and communications studies), center Kyle Young (secondary education), defensive tackle Nick Eason (sociology), Charles Hafley (sociology), wide receiver Matt Bailey (speech and communications) and offensive tackle T.J. Watkins (marketing) certainly were beaming with pride on their respective graduation days. Merritt graduated last December, Young, Bailey and Watkins followed in May, then Dantzler, Eason and Hafley walked across the Littlejohn Coliseum stage this past Aug. 11.

If you attend a graduation ceremony you can see that receiving an undergraduate degree has meaning to these student-athletes. When Rod Gardner walked across the stage last May to receive his diploma from Jim Barker, he hugged the Clemson president. Dantzler did the same thing this past August.

Having two players of note, Gardner, a first-round draft choice by the Washington Redskins, and Dantzler, a Heisman Trophy candidate, earn degrees is significant. It bodes well for the future because success breeds success, whether it is on the field or in the classroom.

"Younger players see the seniors getting their degree, seeing first hand that it is important to them, and it adds to the younger player's motivation," said Bill D'Andrea, associate athletic director for Clemson's widely acclaimed student-athlete enrichment program. "It sets an example for the younger players. A lot of these players look to the older players for guidance."

A prime example is defensive tackle Nick Eason and quarterback Willie Simmons. Clemson's defensive MVP of 2000 earned his degree in three years and three summer sessions. With a red-shirt year on the field in 1998, Eason has a degree with two years of eligibility remaining, a first in Clemson history. Sophomore quarterback Willie Simmons is now on track to trump that accomplishment. The marketing major came to Clemson with credits in hand from advanced placement courses in high school. He is slated to earn his degree in May.

Positive examples are also being set by former Clemson players who have returned to Clemson to get their degrees. As noted in the opening program of the year, Anthony Simmons, one of the top five tacklers in the NFL last year with the Seattle Seahawks, returned to campus this past summer to work towards his undergraduate degree. He was in classes with current Tiger players and was seen working on his studies in Vickery Hall during the summer.

"Having former players like Anthony Simmons come back to get their degree sends a message to the younger players," said D'Andrea. "Anthony is making seven figures per year and just came off his best year in the NFL, yet he was back at Clemson working on his degree. It is telling the young players that going to class is important."

The same example is also being set with the Clemson men's basketball program by Greg Buckner, a member of the Dallas Mavericks, who also spent the summer at Clemson.

In the fall of 2000, Clemson set a record for student-athletes on the academic honor roll with 225, nearly 50 percent of Clemson's student-athlete population. Their overall GPA for the spring semester of 2001 was 2.80, compared to a 2.82 for the overall student body. Clemson's football team posted a record 2.58 team GPA, one of six teams to record their highest team GPA on record.

Vickery Hall, the structure itself, and its talented, dedicated staff have a lot to do with the academic success of Clemson student-athletes in all programs. The concept of Athletic Director Bobby Robinson, Vickery Hall was opened in 1991, the first self-standing facility used for the enrichment of student-athletes in the nation. Many schools have followed suit in the last 10 years.

"We have a program in place that addresses the student-athletes needs in and outside the classroom," said D'Andrea. "It starts from day one their freshman year. Each freshman student-athlete attends a class that meets once a week and it deals with all aspects of life. It addresses needs and problems that are unique to the student-athlete and helps with their adjustment to college life."

D'Andrea is also quick to point out that the Clemson coaches have realized the importance of Clemson's student-athlete enrichment program. "Our own coaches have bought into the program and that has been very important. You need the coaches to be behind what we are trying to do and that has been the case."

The seven graduates on this year's team, plus former Tigers like Anthony Simmons who return to the classroom in the middle of their professional careers, are setting a standard and example for Clemson's current freshmen and future Tigers now in high school. When you take into account the total mission of a University, it is as important an accomplishment as any touchdown or tackle.

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

"Our pre-construction Value Engineering Program saved the University almost $100,000. The superior quality of the finished building speaks for itself."

*R. Lynn Yeargin '76
President*

Located right behind the "ROCK"—from concept to completion, this dramatic 300 student four-story dormitory project is designed to reflect the traditional heritage of Clemson University's growing campus.

YEARGIN'S involvement on campus has allowed us to share with the University our kindred values and attributes—Quality, Pride, Initiative, Integrity, and Excellence—exceeding our clients expectations.

If thinking of a new project, growth or expansion, give us a call. When "building for the future" let YEARGIN'S FULL SERVICE CONSTRUCTION TEAM provide the expertise that brings your concept to reality.
